Tax Conferees Approach Agreement

It Cannot Be Quiet. You'll Buy Stocks Again. 100% Tax on Crime. April Fifth Won; Wales Danced.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

JEREMIAH, WHOSE specialty was lamenting, wrote:

"There is sorrow on the sea; it cannot be quiet:"

You may substitute "Wall Street" for "Sea," and it will still be accurate. There is sorrow in Wall Street, and it, also, cannot be quiet.

YESTERDAY MORNING when "The Street" heard that the budget was balanced, stocks went up, and all was as gay as the playing of fountains at Versailles.

Then somebody began thinking, and the fountains stopped spouting. The thinker, perhaps, said to himself:

"The budget is balanced IF the budget balancing is done on the assumption that 'socking the rich' will yield all that is hoped for. As well rely on selling horns of the unicorn. There are no unicorns, although you may see them ornamenting Gothic tapestry and Britain's coat of arms."

ALSO, THERE are few rich left to be "socked." You could say of New York, lair of the rich, the same Jeremiah said of another great city:

"Concerning Damascus, Hamath is confounded, and Arpad: For they have heard evil tidings: They are faint-hearted."

Pick out any two of the former "very rich" and they will answer the description of Hamath and Arpad. However, it will pass, and you will be buying stocks, and wondering why you did not buy at the bottom.

NEW YORK CITY may be in some ways like Damascus in the days of Jeremiah, but New York has more money.

Yesterday, Mr. Berry, New York's comptroller, announced that he had collected in one day more than seventy-four million dollars in taxes, more than on the same day in 1931.

To some extent the misfortunes of property owners stimulate tax paying. A man with a mortgage must pay taxes or have his mortgage foreclosed. Many that would let taxes run dare not do so on account of the mortgage holder.

THE SENATE on Tuesday voted to tax 100 per cent all incomes earned through violations of state or federal laws.

This indicates the opinion that our government is more efficient collecting taxes than in stopping crime. And that opinion is sound. We collect taxes, we do not check crime.

With a 100 per cent tax, bootleggers, racketeers and the army of crooked politicians will have nothing more to do with banks or safe deposits. Even the big tin box at home will not be safe from a vigilant government prying.

ONE MILLION Britishers went to see "April the Fifth," a 100-to-6 outsider win the Derby. Millions were lost on the favorite.

The King, Queen Mary and all their children saw the horses run, and the night before the derby, Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, our Atlantic Ocean flier, danced three times with the Prince of Wales at a charity ball. It was an exciting day and night in London.

SENATOR CARTER GLASS, of Virginia, believes he has a better plan than the Goldsborough bill for increasing the money supply. He would make all government bonds eligible as a basis for issuing currency, thus increasing the supply of currency in circulation by about a billion dollars.

One billion would help, but it is less than ten dollars per inhabitant and the country needs more.

CONGRESS, SEEKING to make itself popular, rejected a "sales tax." But you will find a good imitation of a sales tax when the new bill is in effect.

It will cost more for letter postage, income taxes will be increased, and you will pay taxes on cosmetics, jewelry, automobiles, candy, soft drinks. Congress discovered that socking the rich alone would not do, and the poor had to be socked to some extent, including the honest working girl, buying her complexion preparations.

THE AMERICAN dollar recovered in London yesterday. Perhaps you know that it has fallen off lately in London, Poland, Paris and elsewhere. Our friends in Europe have believed that we must leave the gold basis and our dollars might not be worth much. Interesting is the theory that the dollar's value depends on a small lump of gold put away in some safe, rather than on things that the dollar can buy.

THE "UNITED Farmers of Canada" denounce the gold standard, saying:

"We consider that inflation or counter-deflation would be of great value at the present time."

Canada, actually, is not on the gold standard, since you cannot get gold in exchange for Canadian money.

And no part of the world would be on the gold standard if the people should suddenly demand their gold. There isn't enough gold in the world to pay the deposits in our savings banks.

However, the idea that we are actually on the gold standard seems to comfort many and cannot hurt any one.

A JURY at Peoria, Ill., indicates that the public is tired of kidnaping. Eight men were convicted of the kidnaping of Dr. James W. Parker yesterday. Four were sentenced to twenty-five years in prison, one to fifteen, one to seven, two to five years each. The state asked the death penalty for four of the kidnapers.

CONFEREES SPEED TAX MEASURE

Work Under Secrecy Pledge; Complete Agreement by Nightfall Anticipated

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Working under a pledge of secrecy, Senate and House conferees on the new billion dollar tax bill made such progress today in compromising their differences that a complete agreement was predicted by night fall.

Scores of items were adjusted at the morning session but the conferees declined to announce any of their decisions.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, declared:

"We are making gratifying progress. We have joined in a solemn promise not to divulge anything until we are ready to report back to the Senate and House."

Lobbyists haunted the corridors of the capitol anxious to learn the fate of items in dispute.

There was some talk in the House of reviving the moderate manufacturer's excise, as recommended by President Hoover. Administration leaders predicted there would be no trouble over the issue, as both House and Senate have overwhelmingly rejected it. Representative Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, led the revival movement, but it failed to make much headway.

Hearst to Address Nation on Taxes

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(Universal.)—Taxes which would not be a burden upon poor men or men of moderate means will be discussed by William Randolph Hearst in an address on "Painful and Painless Taxation," which will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network of National Broadcasting Company station, Friday evening.

Mr. Hearst will speak for 15 minutes from the studios of KFI, the Earle C. Anthony station in Los Angeles. He will be heard in the East at 10:45 p. m., eastern daylight time.

More than 50 stations will be in the hookup arranged by the National Broadcasting Company for the address. The WEAF-Red network will carry it in the East, while supplementary hookups will enable listeners in the South, Northwest and West to hear him.

Due to wide-world interest in the efforts of the United States to solve its tax problems and balance its budget, the address will be rebroadcast by short wave to foreign countries.

Mr. Hearst's address will be heard in this section through Station WCAE at 10:45 p. m., Friday.

Rosa Ponselle Rests At Home of Doctor

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 2.—(AP.)—Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera star, left St. Raphael's Hospital today, three weeks after she underwent an abdominal operation.

The black-haired soprano, who started her musical career as a cafe singer here, was driven to the home of Dr. William F. Verdi, a personal friend. She did not disclose how long she expected to remain there.

Legion Will Invite Wales to Convention

Clothing Ignites as She Tries to Light Gas Stove

Patricia, nearly 5 years old, wanted to bake a pie.

So she lighted a match at the gas stove. A few seconds later she was stumbling down the steps of her second-floor home, her dress in flames.

Somebody wrapped a coat about her and extinguished the flames.

But it was too late. She died a few hours later today in McKeesport Hospital.

Patricia was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McDermott, of 3512 Mayfair street, McKeesport. Mr. McDermott is a fireman.

Two neighbors, Mrs. Frances Marton and Mrs. P. J. Welsh, wrapped a coat and sweater about her to extinguish the flames. But even then her dress was a black ruin and the flames were dying.

Lina Is Dempsey's Friend, Mother Says

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 2.—(AP.)—Lina Basquette, film actress, and "Rosita Gonzales," to whom Jack Dempsey is attentive, are the same person, the actress' mother, Mrs. Ernest Belcher, said today.

Miss Basquette and Dempsey are now in Reno, Mrs. Belcher said. Dispatches from the Nevada city said the former heavyweight boxing champion of the world had introduced the dark-eyed girl with him as "Miss Gonzales." Mrs. Belcher said her daughter had assumed the name of "Rosita Gonzales."

400 Fed in Sharpsburg, Others on Way to City; Duquesne Group Forming

The Pittsburgh district became a sub-center of activities today for the crowds of World War veterans marching to Washington to urge on Congress the immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus.

About 400 Chicago veterans, who had camped over night at Sharpsburg, boarded eight freight cars attached to a Pennsylvania Railroad stock train and left for Harrisburg.

Another and larger delegation, equal size, recruited from other western cities, was expected to arrive in Sharpsburg sometime today.

VETS ASK TRUCKS

A letter, framed at a meeting of more than 100 service men at Duquesne last night, was on its way to Gov. Gifford Pinchot asking him to furnish 15 state trucks to carry the bonus supporters from Duquesne, Homestead, Rankin, Braddock and adjoining communities to the national capital. Plans were made to leave Duquesne Saturday morning, regardless of the Governor's response.

An orderly, well-mannered crowd, the 400 Chicago veterans, under the command of Lieut. A. H. Milton, tumbled out of freight cars in the Sharpsburg P. R. R. yards at 11 p. m. yesterday.

Borough Councilman Leo Horstman and Dr. S. K. Hall, commander of the Sharpsburg American Legion Post, directed the

OXYGEN FAILS TO SAVE BABY

One squad of South Side police lost a race against death today, but another was keeping alive a 6-month-old baby, ill of pneumonia.

Three-year-old James Kennedy died of pneumonia in his home at 3116 McClurg street a few minutes before Patrolman Thomas Fitzgerald and Richard Challis, summoned by the child's father, Thomas Kennedy, arrived with oxygen. Their efforts to revive the baby failed.

But in the Mason home at 1210 Bingham street, George Mason, 6 months, was still alive, thanks to the oxygen pumped by Patrolmen John Lonergan, Charles Schmidt and Martin McIntyre. For more than 17 hours police have been at the infant's bedside.

Pinchot Announces 5 Million Budget Cut

State Departmental Expenses for Year Ordered Slashed

HARRISBURG, June 2.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today announced that he had shaved $5,300,000 from the annual budgets of departments reporting to him.

In making this announcement the Governor said that organization leaders who yesterday agreed with him as to the need for a special session of the Legislature for unemployment relief had presented "reduction in cost of state government and subsidies" as their first topic of discussion with him.

A second conference of organization leaders and the Governor is to be held Monday. Meanwhile the Governor has given assurance he will study the organization program and reaffirmed his declaration that he will call a session as soon as he is convinced that "a safe majority of votes can be counted on for some effective plan of relief."

PINCHOT STATEMENT

Pinchot said regarding the $5,300,000 reduction:

"This is the result of preparations begun months ago when it became apparent that the revenue for the coming fiscal year would, because of the depression, fall below what was expected.

"This saving of $5,300,000 will not be taken uniformly out of the $96,000,000 set aside for this fiscal year. Much of this amount cannot be reduced. Only the Legislature has the power to cut down the amounts voted by the Legislature for subsidies to schools, hospitals, and many other purposes. These amount to $49,000,000 for one year and they are not touched by the reduction.

"This saving is to cover the loss in revenue, and does not cover the cut in hospital and other funds resulting from the passage of the Talbot Act. This can only be done by legislation."

Balm Suit Delayed By Aimee's Illness

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—A continuance of the $200,000 breach of promise suit, brought by Miss M. H. St. Pierre, Pasadena nurse, against David L. Hutton, husband of Aimee McPherson Hutton, evangelist, was granted until June 20 today by Superior Judge M. F. McComb.

Affidavits stating Mrs. Hutton was ill in Gautemala and Hutton was unable to leave her were held by the judge sufficient cause for a continuance, although Miss St. Pierre's attorney voiced a protest.

Chaplin Ends Japan Visit, Sails for U. S.

TOKIO, June 2.—(AP.)—Charlie Chaplin ended a three weeks' visit to Japan today and sailed for Seattle from Yokohama.

Before he left he paid a visit to Premier Admiral Saito and asked to see the room in which former Premier Suyoshi Inukai was fatally shot. Chaplin asked why the former premier didn't escape. His guide said to do so would have been a violation of the Japanese Samurai code, which forbids flight from danger.

FALL OIL CASE DROPPED

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Criminal charges against Albert B. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, Edward L. Doheny and Edward L. Dohney, Jr., were dismissed today by Justice James M. Proctor in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

This action, by request of Atlee Pomerene, government prosecutor, wiped the docket clean of charges growing out of the celebrated oil trials following the Harding administration.

Three indictments were quashed—two against Fall and Sinclair and the other against the Dohenys and Fall—all charging conspiracy.

Amelia Will Meet Husband in France

Akron Joining Fleet From Secret Base

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—(AP.)—Her whereabouts concealed by official secrecy, the Navy dirigible Akron, largest of air crafts, was en route today to assume her fighting capacity as "eyes of the fleet."

Mellon in Knee Breeches At Derby Day Dinner

LONDON, June 2.—(AP.)—United States Ambassador Mellon appeared in silk knee breeches last night at the Derby Day dinner given by Lady Ellesmere at Bridgewater House.

Queen Mary and the Duchess of York were there, but the King was entertaining racing friends at the traditional Derby Day stag dinner in Buckingham Palace.

Invitations to the dinner at Bridgewater House specified court dress. It is understood that Mr. Mellon has decided that when he attends a palace function as the American ambassador he will dress as he would at a similar affair at the White House, but when he is invited merely as Mr. Mellon to places where court dress is prescribed, he will wear breeches.

FREE WORK BY COUNTY CHARGED

Employes Used to Construct Stand for Political Meet At Wexford, Witness Says

The investigation of alleged misuse of county labor and materials, reputed inefficiency and payroll padding went forward vigorously today with these developments:

1—Records at South Park were placed under guard as auditors began examination of records at North Park for payroll "juggling."

2—A former carpenter at North Park told of employes being diverted to build a speaker's stand for a political meeting at Wexford before the primaries last September.

3—Eight buffalo died in North Park presumably from drinking water contaminated with oil in a creek.

County police were detailed to guard records at South Park on orders of Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank as the investigation resumed today.

This action came as auditors already were beginning a check-up of records at North Park for evidence of alleged payroll padding, while witnesses continued their tale of alleged waste and political manipulation of employes.

County labor was used to build a speakers' stand for a political meeting at Wexford prior to the primary election last September, a former carpenter at North Park related.

The carpenter said he and two laborers detached from North Park spent three days building the stand and one day tearing it down after the meeting.

NAMES ARMSTRONG, COYNE

He said the speakers at the rally were the late Joseph G. Armstrong, former chairman of the County Commissioners; District Attorney A. T. Park and State Senator James J. Coyne.

The carpenter also told of eight buffalos in North Park dying, presumably from drinking water containing oil, and when he pointed this out to a park supervisor, he was told:

"Well, let them die."

He built boxes in which six buffalo hides were shipped to Rockford, Ill., for tanning, the bill for which he said he understood was sent to Allegheny County. Asked as to who received the tanned hides, the witness said he understood they were for Paul B. Riis, director of county parks.

carpenter stated. Solicitor Frank immediately sent police to search for the hides.

The carpenter-witness told of being ordered to remodel what was known as the McKinney barn in North Park for the keeping of horses. Elaborate stalls were built, he said, with electric lights and special bins and the building painted inside and out, costing in all about $5,500.

Later, all improvements were ripped out and moved to another barn when fire destroyed the homestead of the stable boss near the McKinney barn several days after remodelling of the dwelling had been completed, the witness said.

PROTESTS ON SHED

In August, 1929, the witness recalled, he was ordered by Director Riis to build a large lumber shed in North Park. He said he protested, with these words:

"Why Mr. Riis a road is to be built right through here."

Whereupon, Riis, according to the witness, replied:

"What's the difference, you're working for a rich firm."

The shed cost about $4,500, the witness estimated. Later engineers staked out a road to the swimming pool, showing the shed squarely in the middle. They laid out the road to encircle the shed, the witness said. The road has not been constructed, he asserted.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENT

The same witness described requests for a political assessment made by the North Park custodian, named Graham. He said he paid $40 under protest. Another park employe, a painter, paid an assessment and two days later laid off, the witness said.

Director Riis saw a picture of a stone picker in a magazine, the witness asserted, with the result that county employes spent 1,000 hours building one for picking stones off the golf course at North Park. It was later discarded, he said. Two tractors and a five-ton truck were required to haul it.

Boards and straw placed on the greens over the winter of 1930-31 were dragged off with a tractor the following spring, leaving deep holes in the greens, the carpenter declared.

POSTS DISCARDED

A man was engaged at $12 a day to make concrete sign posts for North Park, according to the same witness. After he had made 200 posts, two were installed, then taken down and all stored in the buffalo pen. The witness said he had a road drag and was ashamed of it. It was used once and discarded.

Solicitor Frank today continued to ask that names of witnesses be suppressed after yesterday's disclosure that two had been threatened if they "talked too freely." Those appearing were not placed under oath.

A former timekeeper at North Park who was before the investigators yesterday, recalled today, told of keeping a private set of records in October, 1929, after he had learned laborers were being paid more than his timesheet showed they were entitled to. One man, supposed to get $44, was actually paid $62, the witness stated.

OUSTED FROM JOB

The timekeeper said he had taken the matter to William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the County Commissioners, and was told to put it in writing. He produced a copy of a letter which he said he had sent to Ziefel.

The same witness yesterday told of being ordered out of the North Park office, told to turn in his book and get off the job by Director Riis, after protesting the apparent payroll padding. He subsequently was reinstated.

Witnesses yesterday informed the county probers that, while employed by the county, they had worked on the properties of Edward M. Kenna, former county road commissioner; John A. Fugassi, former superintendent of road maintenance; the late Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong; Roy Walters, Armstrong's secretary, and Joseph Lorenzo, head of the county landscaping department, and a Mr. Bennett, of Gibsonia.

County employes also did considerable work on the property of a "Beechview bootlegger," it was stated at the hearing. A former employe said that he had worked on the Beechview property, but did not know the name of the owner. He was asked by Frank why he knew it was the home of a bootlegger. He replied:

"He gave me a big drink."

WORK LISTED

Lorenzo seemed to be the biggest beneficiary of the "favors" offered by the county departments. Witnesses said that there were built on the Lorenzo property, by county materials, an extension to the house, a barn, a garage, a small office building, a teen house, fish pond, grading, a pig pen, concrete driveway, a well and a pump.

One witness related he helped on most all the jobs. He stated he also helped remove lumber, cement and sand and pipe from county warehouses to the Lorenzo property on the Thompson Run road. This witness said the lumber and pipe came from the warehouse at Parkview and the other materials from a warehouse near Bellevue. On several trips to the Lorenzo home from the warehouse, the truck was driven the witness said, by a brother of Lorenzo.

The same witness testified that he had worked on the Kenna, Fugassi and Armstrong properties but was dismissed one day when he went home ill instead of reporting to work at the Kenna home.

A former truck driver for the landscape bureau testified that on one occasion he was ordered to a house in Beechwood boulevard and with him on the truck was Lorenzo's brother. There he helped move the belongings of two women to a house in Stratford avenue. The belonging consisted of hat boxes and wearing apparel.

This same driver revealed that on numerous occasions he had driven county laborers to homes for private work and also had delivered shrubbery, seeds and tools to the same homes. He was told, he said, never to stop long in front of the homes, but to unload and make a quick getaway.

work of volunteer workers who stayed up all night to see that the marchers were properly fed and billeted.

The Allegheny County American Legion has no connection with any local plan for veterans marching to Washington, County Commander John J. Deller declared today.

PRAISES RAILROAD

When the veterans boarded their cars for the ride to Harrisburg, Lieut. Milton told reporters:

"We have nothing but praise for the treatment we have received from the railroads. We realize that we are legal trespassers. Therefore, if the railroad authorities are kind enough to glance the other way, when our 400 men are 'stealing' a ride, we try to repay their kindness by maintaining order and discipline.

"All of the men help us in trying to protect the railroad property from any harm that might arise from our unconventional style of travel.

"Communists who approached us in Chicago asking us to distribute their literature along our route were run out of camp summarily.

"We are law-abiding citizens seeking what we believe is our due and we wish to make just that impression on the public."

ERIE GROUP EXPECTED

A delegation of 100 Erie (Pa.) veterans, traveling by truck, are due to arrive in Pittsburgh Saturday night. They will be commanded by E. P. Wagner, head of Erie chapter of the Disabled American Veterans.

The Duquesne veterans, organized under John Culshaw, wartime sailor, plan to join the bonus forces at the nation's capital for the concentrated drive for immediate cash payment of the bonus. Plans for the march were definitely agreed upon and officers elected at an organization meeting held at the soldiers' shrine in Duquesne last night.

Most of those who attended last night's meeting are Duquesne veterans, but a drive is being made among the membership today and tomorrow to enlist "companies" from the surrounding boroughs of Homestead, Rankin and Braddock.

The only requirement, Commander Culshaw pointed out, was that the recruit be able to prove service by showing his honorable discharge certificate.

Should any groups of ex-service men stop in Pittsburgh en route to Washington they will be given every police courtesy, Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh said today. He explained:

"We will give them a police escort if they come in trucks, and if they need food or shelter we will make arrangements with the Helping Hand or other similar organizations to care for them."

5,000 VETERANS ON MARCH

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—A tented city is being arranged to house the thousands of World War veterans marching on Washington to demand immediate cash payment of their bonus.

Press and private reports reaching Brig. Gen. Glassford, Superintendent of Police, indicated today that more than 5,000 now are en route via trucks, automobiles and freight trains, or are about to start. They are coming from the four corners of the nation.

Police estimate that between 1,000 and 1,500 former soldiers are now here. More than 600 are billeted in two vacant buildings.

Efforts to learn how the movement started have been unsuccessful. Glassford said those now under way have been attracted by the publicity of free housing and the chance of a free ride.

Walter W. Waters, "commander-in-chief" of those now here, said the idea originated with a group in Oregon. He emphatically denied that Communists or the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, an affiliate of the Communist organization, inspired it.

Dougherty, North Braddock, charged that her career as a dancing instructor was halted by injuries to her legs and back in a fall while attending a funeral, in a $10,000 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court. She named as defendants Herman P. Brandt, Perrysville undertaker, and Robert Reinaman, contractor.

The instructor declared a plank over concrete steps laid by Reinaman at the undertaking establishment moved and caused her to fall while she attended a funeral of a relative, October 8.

HURLEY VOICES OPPOSITION TO GARNER BILL

Attacks Rivers, Harbors Proposals as Treasury's Head Protests Bond Issue

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The administration turned its Cabinet guns loose on pending relief bills in Congress today.

Secretary of War Hurley, appearing before the Ways and Means committee, opposed the Garner bill, and at the same time Secretary of the Treasury Mills was voicing his objections to the $500,000,000 bond issue proposed in the Wagner bill.

Hurley told the Ways and Means Committee that there is in the existing budgetary estimates provision for $69,500,000 for rivers and harbors work, which he estimated would provide employment for 24,264 persons. The Garner bill, he said, proposes to expend $154,400,000, and would create 63,442 jobs. Hurley confined his criticism of the measure to the rivers and harbors and flood control provisions.

GARNER ON HAND

Speaker Garner was an attentive listener as the Secretary of War analyzed the measure.

Mills indorsed the principal features of the Wagner measure, except the bond issue. He said the Treasury approved the proposed loan of $300,000,000 through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to states for direct relief and the loan of $1,460,000,000 to states for self-liquidating public buildinging projects. He was firm against the $500,000,000 bond issue to finance public works which are not self-liquidating.

Mills testified:

"The fundamental objection to this bond issue proposal is that it unbalances the budget. It resorts to the unsound device of an extraordinary budget, it breaks down a sound financial policy pursued since the beginning of the government. What is actually contemplated is the creation of a special or extraordinary budget in the amount of $500,000,000 to be covered by a special bond issue.

OPPOSES 'BEGGING'

Mills said he did not believe a state should exist which could not take care of itself. He declared:

"I would be ashamed of New York if that state went begging with hat in hand for funds from the federal government."

Although agreeing with the principle of Wagner's bill except for the bond issue, Mills objected to many of the administrative provisions. He said the mere certification by the government of a state that the state's funds were exhausted was not adequate enough to warrant loans for direct unemployment relief. He said:

"It is a direct invitation for all states to apply for federal funds. I know of no conceivable reason why great rich states like New York and Pennsylvania should receive a grant from the Federal Treasury or be invited to accept one. They are well able to take care of their own."

Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, said he would rather trust the governor of the state as to whether they have exhausted their resources than "some subordinate official in Washington." He said:

"Human beings in the federal government are not any different from other human beings, and if we have got to trust anybody I would just as soon trust those not in the government."

JAPANESE ARMY SUFFERS LOSS

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

HARBIN, June 2.—Severe casualties to both Japanese army troops and rebels against the new Manchukuo government forces were feared to have resulted from a concerted drive against the rebels staged today in the vicinity of the western extension of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

In addition to losses in infantry and artillery forces, six Japanese planes were reported missing after one of the attacks.

The Japanese troops, acting coordinately with the Manchukuo forces, drove rebels under Gen. Li Hai-Ching across the tracks of the railway extension and northward toward the Siberian border.

The Japanese were concentrating above the Sungari River and southwest of Harbin, where they succeeded in driving insurgents out of a triangular area bordered by the western and southern extensions of the C. E. R. and the Supinkai-Taitsihar Railroad.

Fake Deaf Mute Sentenced to Jail

Walter Cobb, 17, a Negro, from Youngstown, posing as a deaf mute, went to the home of Patrolman F. H. Langford, 1826 Jancey street, yesterday begging money. Seeing Langford's uniform in the hallway, Cobb ran.

Last night, Langford, walking his beat in Chislett street, saw Cobb talking to another Negro and arrested him. Magistrate Thomas D. Jones gave him 10 days in jail. He went to jail.

Actress Defendant in $100,000 Balm Action

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP)—Helen Hayes, stage and screen actress, has been made defendant in a suit for $100,000 instituted in Circuit Court by Caryl Frink MacArthur, first wife of the actress' husband, Charles MacArthur, playwright.

The basis for the suit, it was learned, will be a charge of alienated affections. Gerald T. Wiley, attorney for the first Mrs. MacArthur, said he would file the declaration within a week.

The suit was suppressed until today by Judge David M. Brothers, but service was obtained while Miss Hayes was starring in "The Good Fairy" at a Loop theater last week. She left for Montreal at the close of the Chicago engagement.

Several years ago Caryl Frink MacArthur was unsuccessful in an effort to have their divorce set aside by Illinois courts.

Miss Hayes, about the time of that court action, became the mother of the famous "act of God" baby, so called because of the quarrel between Actors' Equity, Miss Hayes and the New York theater producer with whom she was under contract when she left the stage as motherhood approached.

The attorney indicated the first Mrs. MacArthur will shortly file a petition for adjustment of her alimony. By the terms of their divorce decree she was to receive 10 per cent of the royalties from her husband's first play, "Lulu Belle," amounting to $4,000. This has been held in escrow for her, Caryl Frink MacArthur refusing to accept it.

SUGGEST ARMY OF JOBLESS BE MASSED

Detroit Conference Would Put Millions to Work On Construction Projects

Universal Service.

DETROIT, June 2.—Mayors of 29 American cities representing 20,000,000 citizens, today had declared war on unemployment and demanded of Congress immediate adoption of the five billion dollar prosperity loan for public works.

An economic war, to be waged against malnutrition, disease, unemployment and business stagnation, was the theme which permeated the resolutions and official records of the conference of mayors.

ONLY TWO DISAGREE

Of the 29 cities represented at the conference presided over by Mayor Frank Murphy, only one voted "no" on the prosperity loan resolution. Two voted "no" on the other relief proposals, which provided for Reconstruction Finance Corporation credit for refunding bonds and for direct relief work.

The prosperity loan resolution read:

"We recommend a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for national projects to effectuate the employment of millions of men and in this manner obtain work for our jobless, redistribute purchasing power and thereby stimulate industry.

"We suggest that this be done by Congress declaring war not figuratively, but literally—war against unemployment and depression; and that to this end a work army be mobilized as armies were mobilized in 1917-18 for work on national projects throughout the United States."

At the top of the list of signators were such names as James J. Walker, of New York City; James M. Curly, of Boston; T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans; Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee; Ray T. Miller, of Cleveland; John T. O'Connor, of Knoxville, Tenn.; R. B. Gautier, of Miami, Fla.; Mayor Murphy and many others.

ALL SECTIONS UNITED

The mayors represented every section, every social and economic viewpoint and a variety of political faiths.

They were backed by the support of many other mayors who were unable to attend, but who wired their accord in the action taken.

Mayor Murphy, Mayor Curley and five others yet to be named, are to journey to Washington with the resolutions within the next few days.

Mayor Curley, chairman of the resolutions committee, was the staunchest advocate of the prosperity loan at the conference, presenting it as a measure which would bring jobs to the nation's 8,000,000 unemployed and indirect relief to countless other tax burdened urban dwellers.

Hoover Relief Plan Scored by Ritchie

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 2.—(INS.)—President Hoover's plan for aiding private industry through the aid of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is a "long step toward communism," Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, told the Jefferson Democratic Club of Buncombe County last night. He favored a public works program.

He pointed to the failure of the Federal Farm Board to maintain prices of agricultural commodities, and of the Federal Reserve System in its recent campaign of buying government paper in an effort to stem the decline of values.

SOVIET ATTEMPT TO LAND ARMS FOR IRISH ARMY CHARGED

BRITISH NAVY BLOCKS GUN SHIPMENT

Free State Senate Majority Apparently Opposed to Oath Abolition Measure

LONDON, June 2.—(AP.)—A Russian attempt to land arms in southern Ireland for the Irish Republican army, the Daily Express said today, was thwarted by the British navy over the past week-end.

The arms, the paper said, were intended to be used by the Republican forces, who were placed under the ban of the government during the previous regime of President Cosgrave, of the Free State, in the event of a conflict between the Free State and Ulster.

The tramp steamers carrying the arms, it said, were warned by radio of the activity of British warships which set out to head them off at Irish ports, and they returned to the foreign ports where they were chartered without being able to land the fighting equipment.

ARMY REVIVED

The Irish Republican army took on a new lease of life after the election of Eamon De Valera as president of the Free State.

Moss Towney, a member of its council, reiterated at a ceremony in Dublin on March 27 in commemoration of the Easter uprising of 1916 the army's resolve to set up a republic, smash the Anglo-Irish treaty and remove British interests from Ireland.

The Free State government itself is not expected to countenance any attempt to coerce Ulster by force of arms, but fears have been expressed that some armed body of extreme Republicans might stage a demonstration on the Ulster border to force the hand of the government to stronger measures.

OPPOSE OATH ABOLITION

DUBLIN, June 2.—(AP.)—The indication today was that a majority of the members of the Free State Senate are opposed to President Eamon De Valera's bill for abolishing the oath of allegiance to Great Britain.

The Senate voted last night, 26 to 17, to adjourn debate on the bill, against the protests of the supporters of the De Valera measure, which already has passed the Dail Eirann.

The debate on the motion last night was spirited. Opposition senators charged it was a breach of the Anglo-Irish treaty and its supporters asked what right England had to talk of broken treaties. Senator Doherty, Republican, asked if England had not hung up home rule, divided Ireland in two and sent the black-and-tans to "establish a reign of terror" in spite of her engagements to Ireland.

While eating candy in her back yard Java jumped over the fence to snatch the bag from Florence's hand. Java missed the bag and sank his teeth into the girl's right arm. The wound was cauterized by a physician.

ALMA RUBENS' DOCTOR FREED

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—Acquitted on a federal narcotic charge, Dr. I. Jesse Citron, Hollywood physician, faced possible action today by the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Citron had been charged with prescribing narcotics for the late Alma Rubens, motion picture star. United States District Judge William P. James, in acquitting Dr. Citron, ruled the Harrison narcotic act, under which the physician was brought to trial, is "essentially a revenue measure."

An official of the State Board of Medical Examiners said that on the evidence brought out at the trial Dr. Citron would be brought before that body in an effort to revoke his license. He claimed he prescribed the narcotics for Miss Rubens, an addict, in the manner he thought her condition required.

'Horsemen' of Contract Oust Oswald Jacoby

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—"The four horsemen," who have won more contract bridge championships as a team of four than any other combination, today announced they had dropped Oswald Jacoby and replaced him with Howard Schenken.

Jacoby was the first partner of Sidney S. Lenz in the great contract match with Ely Culbertson and various partners. He quit the match after a dispute over his own psychic bids and what he regarded as misplays by Lenz. Since then he has been lecturing under the auspices of the Culbertson organization.

The "horsemen's" announcement, signed by P. H. Sims, the captain; Willard S. Karn and David Burnstine, refers to "objectionable activities" on Jacoby's part without elucidation as to whether or not his association with Culbertson was meant.

DALLAS, Tex., June 2.—(AP.)—Oswald Jacoby, nationally known bridge expert, denied here today that he had been dropped from the team of the "Four Horsemen" and said he had withdrawn voluntarily several weeks ago because his teammates had become jealous of his fame.

COL. LAWRENCE OF ARABIA TO GO FARMING

Romantic Leader of Tribes Grow Potatoes in Essex When Enlistment Expires

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

LONDON, June 2.—Lawrence of Arabia is planning to reverse the role of Cincinnatus.

The erstwhile Col. T. E. Lawrence, who won the war in the Near East for Great Britain by pacifying the fierce Arab tribesmen, and who today is plain Aircraftsman Shaw, an enlisted man in the Royal Air Force, has purchased a plot of land in a remote section of Essex to which he plans to retire and raise potatoes.

MENIAL POSITION

Shaw's position in the air force is a menial one, but he neither asks nor receives special consideration. His only demand is that he be left alone to live in his own way. And the government observes his wishes as punctiliously as Shaw observes the amenities of military etiquette.

British officialdom always respects Shaw's wishes for complete privacy, though sometimes finding it a trifle embarrassing. One officer said:

"We'll be damned glad when his enlistment is up."

The Air Ministry must see to it that no one gets to Shaw without an official permit, which is instantly refused whenever application is made. Occasionally the Air Ministry will communicate with Shaw, asking if he wants to be bothered. But he invariably ignores all these requests.

SCORNED HONORS, RICHES

After the war, Shaw could have had any honor within the power of the British empire. He could have had a peerage and been a millionaire. Yet he voluntarily foreswore honors and wealth for a principle. He believed then, as he believes today, that the British government did not even attempt to keep the promises he made on its behalf to his Arab friends. By his actions, he has shown his disapproval of his country's conduct.

There are many circumstances to show that this is true. Shaw recently confessed to a friend his chief regret—that England had made it impossible for him to return to Arabia, the land he loves best.

Never again can he return there, for the Arabs still believe that Shaw tricked them. And this distrust of the man they once idolized has proved the greatest disappointment of his life.

FEAGAN FACES NEW CHARGE

DETROIT, June 2.—(AP.)—Charles R. Feagan, whose three children recently obtained his release from jail here by appealing personally to President Hoover, faced more trouble today. Advised that Minneapolis police have asked his arrest on a charge of embezzlement, Feagan said he could not understand the basis of the charge and added that he isn't worried about it.

The Minneapolis complaint, issued in 1931, charges he ordered several radios sent to his home and then left without paying for them.

Feagan has not been arrested on the Minneapolis request because it would be impossible to remove him from Michigan as long as the federal authorities have jurisdiction over him. Federal officers arrested him April 27 on a charge of driving a stolen automobile from Missouri to Michigan. Previously he had been held by state authorities on an extradition request covering the same charge.

THIRD GUILTY IN DE JUTE CASE

WARREN, O., June 2.—(AP.)—Anthony Lauri, 37, of Youngstown, today was convicted by a jury of kidnaping 11-year-old James de Jute, Jr., of Niles, last March 2.

The verdict, carrying a penalty of life imprisonment, was reached in one hour and 35 minutes after seven ballots had been taken.

Lauri's conviction marks the second time a jury has imposed life imprisonment upon participants in the kidnaping, and the third time that a guilty verdict has been returned in the case.

Previously, Dowell Hargraves was convicted and sentenced to Ohio Penitentiary to life, and John de Marko, on an accessory charge, sent to jail for a period of one to 20 years.

The freed men are Chester Basial, judge, and John Patton and William Murray, inspectors, in the First Districtof the Fourth Ward, who had been accused of allowing 13 persons to vote illegally in the September election. Attorney Dennis J. Mulvihill represented the defendants.

Senate Debates Cuts For U. S. Employes

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Whether to save government funds by slashing the salaries of its employes was debated today by the Senate.

As arguments for and against a 10 per cent salary cut were advanced, Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, proposed as a substitute the exemption of employes receiving under $1,500 a year and a scale of reductions ranging from 5 to 25 per cent fo rthose getting more.

Store Near Lockup In Braddock Looted

The Braddock police never dreamed that their neighbor, the C. V. Weakland haberdashery, four doors from the Braddock Police Station, would be robbed, but it was.

Thieves made a hole in the ceiling and, dropping down into the store, took 90 suits, three dozens of shoes and dozens of shirts and other men's apparel.

2 MEN TRAPPED IN KIDNAP PLOT

CHICAGO, June 2.—(INS.)—An effort to extort $5,000 from Charles E. Grey, wealthy real estate dealer, as the price of safety for his two small children, ended in failure today with the arrest and confession of two young men.

Falling into a police trap when they attempted to collect the money, William Brand, 25, and Charles Kimball, 29, were seized by Evanston detectives.

Brand, formerly a salesman for Grey's concern, confessed that he framed the conspiracy and authored three extortion letters, police announced. The Lindbergh kidnaping, Brand said, inspired the plot, according to the authorities.

Three hundred miners at Coverdale Mine No. 8, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, who left their work yesterday, today were awaiting the outcome of negotiations between the wage scale committee of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, and officials of the company.

P. T. Fagan, district president, denied reports that the company had demanded a cut of 7 cents a ton for loaders, with no checkweighmen on the tipple. No new scale has been decided upon and checkweighmen will be retained if a new agreement is signed, he said. He blamed non-union competition for the condition.

GO-BETWEENS QUIZZED BY LINDY JURY

Spitale, Bitz and Rosner Testify at Bronx Probe; Jafsie Scans Phila. Photos

NEW YORK, June 2.—The Bronx County grand jury investigating the futile payment of $50,000 ransom for the return of the Lindbergh baby apparently ran out of leads today.

Reconvened to inquire further into the handing of the ransom money by Dr. John F. Condon, the Jafsie of the kidnap case, to a supposed representative of the kidnapers on the night of April 2, the grand jurors heard several witnesses and planned to adjourn subject to call.

ROSNER CALLED AGAIN

Three men appointed by Col. Lindbergh to negotiate with underworld characters in an effort to effect the return of the baby were today's witnesses. One of them, Morris Rosner, had testified at a previous session of the grand jury. Shortly after he was designated by Col. Lindbergh as an investigator, Rosner announced he had positive information the baby was alive and well.

Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, selected by Col. Lindbergh to negotiate for the return of the child, also were before the grand jury today.

Meanwhile Dr. Condon had gone to Philadelphia to examine rogues gallery pictures in his search for a likeness of the man to whom he handed the ransom money in St. Raymond's Cemetery in the Bronx.

Quiet Returns to Land About Lindbergh Home

HOPEWELL, N. J., June 2.—(AP.)—Hopewell, the village lifted to world notice by amazing crime, is humdrum once again.

The gayly uniformed troopers who flashed up and down the Jersey highways and who tramped the hills for clues that seemed always elusive, have gone; all but a few.

The Lindberghs—the slim, hatless Col. Charles and petite, erect Anne Morrow Lindbergh, his wife—they, too, have gone. These are days of magnificent beauty and tranquility in the Sourland Hills, but nature's green fades in hearts banded in black.

The Colonel, robbed by a savage who would murder a baby, is seeking solace in science. At the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York, a special laboratory has been set aside for his exclusive use. None will say what he is doing there. There have been rumors of an apparatus for separating serum from blood, but this is conjecture. Lindbergh himself will not discuss it.

Mrs. Lindbergh, her memory damp with dreams of a curly blond head, seeks solace at the Englewood home of her mother in the knowledge that late summer is to bring another baby.

Other characters in the tragedy of Hopewell Hills go their several ways, little noticed. All save John Hughes Curtis, who invented a horrible hoax and who is in jail, soon to be called to answer for it.

Greenwich Novelist Suffers Burned Foot

NYACK, N. Y., June 2.—(INS.)—Whether it was a kettle of boiling bean soup or a pan of hot water that he stepped into was in dispute, but the result was Maxwell Bodenheim, Greenwich Village poet and novelist, was in Nyack Hospital today with a painfully scalded foot.

He was at a camping party with friends in the woods in Rockland County when he stepped into whatever burned his foot. Police said it was the soup, and that he inadvertently came in contact with it as he improvised a dance by moonlight.

Boy Smothers Bomb Fuse, Father Intended Victim

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP.)—A bomb plot directed at Bryan Hartnett, Democratic alderman of the Twelfth Ward, was foiled last night by his 7-year-old son, Bryan, Jr., when he doused the fuse with water and threw the missile into the street.

A moment later another bomb, planted at the home next door of Michael Hartnett, the alderman's father and a retired police sergeant, exploded so forcefully it jarred the neighborhood and caused $200 damage to the house.

The boy's action came none too soon, police bomb experts said. Had he been a few seconds slower in extinguishing the fuse, five sticks of dynamite the missile contained undoubtedly would have exploded and killed him and a playmate, Robert Perry, 8.

The police expressed belief the bombs were planted by political enemies of the alderman.

WORLD HEARS FRAZIER HUNT ON JAPAN

Disgust of Corrupt Politics Behind Strife, Noted Writer Broadcasts From Tokio

By WILLIAM P. REED
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Japan today is going through one of the most remarkable spiritual and moral transitions of history under the leadership of the inheritors of the old Samauri spirit, who name their cause "Nipponism."

This evaluation of the present unrest in the island empire was made last night by Frazier Hunt, Universal Service special correspondent, noted war correspondent and writer, in a trans-Pacific broadcast from Tokio heard in the United States over the "red" network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Hunt likened feeling in Japan as akin to the Fascism of Adolf Hitler in Germany and Premier Mussolini in Italy, explaining that it is born of mass determination to throw off corrupt politics in government and discard inefficient industrial leadership.

CORRUPTION BLAMED

He said:

"History is being made in Japan in one of the most remarkable transitions in history. Japan is rising against corrupt and inefficient politicians in the government, and all classes look forward with hope for a new deal."

Hunt likened the Japanese situation to that prevalent throughout the world, and to a minor degree in America. Deplorable conditions among farmers, high taxes, a dissatisfied middle class and unemployment, he said, are all laid by the Japanese to corrupt politics.

He continued:

"Everywhere there is a demand for a change; for a recasting of values. Millions throughout the islands feel the need for some great reform, some political and social evolution.

"Among certain classes, this takes the form of a genuine 'red' movement. This, however, is limited to city workmen and young college students, and it lacks leadership."

Gibbons Attacks Bill Perilling U. S. Defense

NEW YORK, June 2.—(Universal)—Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent of Universal Service, last night voiced a stinging criticism of the present War Department appropriations bill now before Congress, declaring the reputation of the country is at stake if the bill is adopted.

He spoke on national defense and his talk was broadcast from station WEAF over a National Broadcasting Company network, under the auspices of the National Security League. Gibbons asserted that if the proposal to drop 2,000 officers from the Army is accepted, the United States is in "the most grave danger," and added:

"Are we ready to say there is never going to be another war? Look at France with her army of 600,000 and great air fleet; look at Great Britain with the greatest navy on earth. China has 1,000,000 men in arms, and there is Japan, armed to the teeth and just itching for a fight.

"Sit down and write your congressman and tell him the need of your country's defenses. And if you're too disgusted with him and his past performances, write to the White House."

Man Hurt by Steers Sues for $50,000

Claiming three escaped steers chased and overtook him, attacked him and knocked him to the ground, fracturing his ribs and jaw and knocking out teeth, William Busch, of the North Side, filed suit against Oswald & Hess Co., of 1324 Spring Garden avenue, North Side, in Common Pleas Court. He asked $50,000 damages for his injuries. He charged that he was attacked on McClintock avenue, July 9, 1931, by the steers, escaped while being transported from Herrs Island to the company's plant.

Point Death Plunge Watched by Crowds

Morgue attaches today were searching for relatives of a man believed to be Robert J. Laird, about 60, who leaped from the Manchester Bridge into the Allegheny River and drowned in view of hundreds of persons at the rush hour last night. The name was tattooed on the right arm.

Robert Huffard, employe of a sand company, recovered the body soon after the man leaped. Police from Central Station worked for 30 minutes in an effort to revive the victim.

4 HOLDUP MEN BEAT VICTIM

Four youths who held up two men in the vicinity of 157 Larimer avenue within 10 minutes early today were being sought by East End police. One of their victims, a man aged 74, was slugged.

The injured man, Hermann Davidson, of 125 Flavel street, told police he had been robbed of $13. His injuries were treated in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Five minutes later Harry Henerly, of 1024 Garrett street, reported to police that a gang, believed to be the same, had robbed him of $15.

While police sought the four youths, two armed men held up Eugene Messinger, of 7059 Fletcher way, and robbed him of $50 as he walked in Frankstown avenue, near Finley street.

"Charley's Restaurant," at 1806 East Ohio street, was held up by two men, who escaped in a battered automobile after looting the cash register of $8.

Oakland police today had found no trace of the armed man who, after tying Miss Violet Westell, 23, a clerk in the Footer's Dye Works storeroom, 4002 Fifth avenue, rifled the cash register of $42.80 late yesterday.

A Negro purse snatcher robbed Mrs. W. D. Sledge, of 6362 Aurelia street, in Penn avenue, near Shady avenue, last night. The purse contained $25.

Clothing and jewelry valued at $590 was stolen yesterday from the home of James (Greenfield Jimmy) Smith, 2222 Beechwood boulevard, former big league baseball player. The front door was forced open. The family was attending a picnic at Kennywood Park.

FREED IN TENT SHOW KILLINGS

CONROE, Tex., June 2.—(AP.)—Durrell Kendall, 22, of Mississippi, was acquitted by a jury here today of the murder of L. H. Brownlee, head of an itinerant minstrel tent show.

Kendall, motion picture projectionist for the show, was accused of slaying both Brownlee and Martha Smith, a member of the troupe. The prosecution advanced robbery as the motive.

The bodies were found in the show tent at New Caney, Tex., on December 10, several days after the ax killings, through the screams of a hungry parrot which led New Caney residents to investigate.

Special Prosecutor Z. L. Foreman sought to have a parrot brought into the courtroom yesterday but District Judge S. A. McCall refused permission. When the trial was over today, Foreman admitted the parrot was not the one that presumably witnessed the killing.

Gunfire Wounds Man on Rum Runner

WOODS HOLE, Mass., June 2.—(INS.)—A blast of 75 rounds of machine gunfire from a Coast Guard vessel today abruptly ended the maiden voyage of the alleged rum-runner Auf Wiedersehen, of New Bedford, resulting in the capture of three men, one of whom was wounded.

On board the craft, Coast Guardsmen found 370 cases of liquor, including 20 brands.

North Sider Held Up Twice in Same Block

August Zabish, of 520 Freeland street, was a much-sought man early today, particularly by highwaymen, he told North Side police.

A short time after four men held him up at Chestnut and Progress streets and robbed him of $8, another quartet, a block away, stopped him, but obtained no loot.

Police Bullets Halt East End Suspect

Two shots were fired by Patrolman Charles Bradley, of the East End, today as he chased a Negro in Paulson avenue, suspected of being a "peeper" and prowler.

The suspect, Weaver Mitchell, 21, of 203 Shetland avenue, who collapsed in the street at the second shot, was lodged in East End Police Station after examination at Pittsburgh Hospital revealed that he had not been injured.

Pupils of Braddock And Rankin Picnic

School pupils of Braddock and Rankin held their annual outings at Kennywood Park today, with a diversified program of amusements, swimming, dancing and sports. James T. McDonald and T. J. McCleary are on the Braddock committee, and Ernest Katz and Frank J. Good head the Rankin committee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

MISS EMMA ROSE

Woman Gathers 162 4-Leaf Clovers In Garden.

Miss Emma Rose, 310 Thirtieth street, McKeesport felt lucky as she strolled into her garden the other day. She was looking for a four-leaf clover. Capt. Fremont Thomas, retired riverman, watched her search carefully among the blades of grass. He said:

"I'll give you a quarter for every one you find."

About an hour later Miss Rose approached the captain. In her hand she held a bunch of clover. In all she had 162 four-leaf clovers.

"How's that?" she said.

The captain remarked something about only fooling but grew less excited when Miss Rose said she did not intend to collect the $40.50 she won on the wager. In the garden behind the Rose home other clovers are growing, and there are numerous four-leaf ones still to be found in the patch, she said.

Miss Rose added:

"They say when you find a four leaf clover you are entitled to a wish. With all the clovers I have found my only wish is better times to everyone."

TROLLEY CUT FIGHT OPENS

The North Boroughs fight against curtailment of street car service in that section by the Pittsburgh Railways Company began today before Examiner Samuel Walker, of the Public Service Commission.

Ross Township citizens were permitted to join the fight of Bellevue, West View, Avalon, Ben Avon and Emsworth.

They contended that the curtailment of service incurs an unreasonable and unnecessary hardship. A 20-minute service has been established on a shuttle route in Forest avenue.

Park H. Martin, Bellevue engineer, was on the stand at the opening of the hearing today detailing grades in the affected territory.

Pennington Probes Dry Agent's Death

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(AP.)—Deputy Prohibition Administrator C. J. Simon today began an investigation into the death of Prohibition Agent William Whipple, who was found in Fairmount Park with a bullet through his head.

Authorities said the death yesterday was a suicide, but Commander John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator, ordered Simon to investigate. A pistol lay near the fatally wounded man when he was found.

Women Plan Fight On Gretna Greens

BALTIMORE, June 2.—(AP.)—Abolition of Maryland's Gretna Greens at Elkton and Ellicott City, which annually draw hundreds of couples from nearby states, was advocated yesterday before the League of Women Voters.

Florence Laynor, chairman of the legal status committee of the league, said a conference of such organizations in Pennsylvania, Deleware, Virginia, New York and Maryland has been called to seek uniform marriage laws.

Prisoner Beaten, Walsh Orders Probe

Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh today ordered Inspector Charles A. Faulkner to investigate events leading to the arrest of John Anderson, 40, of 1120 Sawmill way, and the scuffle which ensued, sending Anderson to the hospital severely beaten.

Patrolman Joseph Ackerman said he had been attacked by Anderson and forced to defend himself after arresting the latter for drunkenness.

TRAP SUSPECT IN EXTORTION

Two county detectives, who for three hours lay in wait for an extortionist along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Treveskyn, early today captured Joseph Switkofsy, 31, of Morgan Hill, who, they say, confessed demanding $2,000 from James Wallace, Treveskyn merchant.

Wallace on May 25 received a note signed "The Gang," demanding that the money be placed at a designated railroad tie.

Last night at 11:15 Wallace, accompanied by Detectives Frank Ritz and Robert McMillen, deposited a package representing bills. Wallace went home and the detectives hid.

Tiring at 2:30 a. m., they started to leave. A rustling in the grass attracted their attention and they pounced on Switkofsky.

The prisoner, they said, admitted he was in the grass when the officers arrived and was afraid to move.

DEBATE G. O. P. DRY PUZZLE

Associated Press.

Speculation in Washington over the Republican convention's prohibition stand was at fever heat today as observers mulled over Postmaster General Brown's declaration that the plank would be satisfactory all around.

That this statement coincided with the issuance by the war council of the dry forces of a warning that any party's move in an anti-dry direction would be met with relentless, active opposition, was not overlooked.

A meeting of Illinois' Democratic delegates in Springfield today was watched for indications of how much aid Franklin D. Roosevelt could expect from favorite son delegations. Though ostensibly for other purposes, the important question at this meet was agreement on convention procedure after the delegation has done its duty by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, the state's candidate. Pro-Roosevelt men apparently are slightly in the majority.

The Roosevelt managers are swelling their claims now to anticipate a landslide that nothing can stop. They are counting on favorite son delegations to swing before even the first ballot is finished.

Garden Stripped Of Plants, 3 Men Fined

That song about tomatoes being cheaper is all wrong, Magistrate Ray Schneider announced in North Side Police Court today as he fined three men $5 each.

The three were arrested in Davis avenue, near Riverview Park. Police said one of them, John J. Hannaback, of Central avenue, Woods Run, had 60 tomato plants.

Hannaback explained that a brother of Mrs. Amelia Cook had given him permission to take the plants from Mrs. Cook's garden at 927 Davis avenue. But the fine followed when police quoted the brother as denying this. The other two were Henry Schaber, of Mt. Neno, and John J. O'Herron, of Woods Run avenue.

Youth Injured In Crash Held

His skull and both legs believed fractured, William J. Sheehan, 18, of 201 South Highland avenue, was in Allegheny General Hospital today. Police said the auto he was driving crashed into a parked truck in River avenue. A charge was placed against Sheehan when the police said they learned the auto was owned by L. S. Duncan, of 490 South Highland avenue.

WALKER OUSTER ATTEMPT NEAR

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—Speedy preparation of removal charges against Mayor James J. Walker was in prospect today.

Samuel Seabury's investigation of the Mayor's office wound up late yesterday. Newspapers predicted ouster charges would be laid before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt soon, possibly next week.

Because Gov. Roosevelt is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and Walker is an adherent of Tammany Hall, the possible effects of the Walker case on the national political picture have come more and more to the fore.

Dr. William H. Walker, the Mayor's brother, appearing as a witness yesterday, heard Seabury produce evidence to show his bank deposits in the last four years were $431,258.

To a question suggesting possible graft, he entered a denial. He acknowledged he split money with doctors who received large fees from the city for treating injured employes, but denied splitting city fees, except with one doctor. With this doctor, he said, he had a joint bank account, in which both deposited, and the money was split "fifty-fifty."

Do you inhale?

Three little words that "upset the apple cart" in the cigarette trade

DO you inhale? Can any question be simpler? And yet—what a furore it has created! The cigarette trade feels that the public has been let in on a sacrosanct secret! "You've upset the apple cart," they say.
Why such anxiety? Certainly the public doesn't fear the question—for everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.
Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!

N. Y. TO TRY OUT FARM PLAN

Word comes from New York that Gov. Franklin Roosevelt is working out a farming community plan much the same as "Coxtown," the Kittanning pike 35-acre enterprise established by Father Cox. Gov. Roosevelt calls his movement "subsistence farms," and advocates both private and state sponsorship. Numbering the jobless at 10 per cent of the population, Gov. Roosevelt explains that dependent families from cities and towns especially those with agricultural experience, would be transferred to the land where they might obtain "the permanent jobs they have lost in overcrowded industrial cities and towns."

Father Cox

"Coxtown" is well under way and Father Cox looks for gratifying results. In the meantime he needs cash more than ever to carry on his work among the needy. He admits that he is $25,000 in debt.

If you want to help this "father of the jobless" at a time when he most needs help, at a time when the problem of feeding thousands of hungry men, women and children is more serious than ever, clip the order blank on this page and send it today. You'll not only get a GOOD newspaper but you'll have the personal satisfaction of giving your personal aid to a worthy cause. Send the subscription blank to Father Cox if you wish.

If you are living in a city or town where there is no home delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, write to the subscription department, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., for mail subscription rates and state in your letter you are interested in the Father Cox fund.

. . . The Big "Price Parade" Has Grown Wearisome

PRICE drew the crowds for a while, but when the mad competition of manufacturers and merchants to undersell led to cheapened qualities, imitation, and substitution, the public soon began to lose interest.

People want and expect values, but they are through with the so-called bargains, in shoddy merchandise, seconds, and leftovers, because they've found, to their sorry experience, that without quality there is no bargain.

Quality merchandise is more important today, when people must weigh every expenditure more judiciously than ever before; and, as some compensation for our lessened buying power, quality merchandise costs very much less today.

Prices, today, make it possible to afford the best. Quality things are the real bargains today. Inspect the Quality First values, which are being featured here this month, in proof of this fact!

HORNE'S

It is the policy of the Joseph Horne Co. to sell only First Quality merchandise, at all times, regardless of price.

And he told you it was just an office by-line so that if you were sick ... he didn't say fired ... the column could go right on without you ... It took a lot of starch out of you, didn't it, Yawitz?

You always wanted to write a column ... It must be the ego in you ... Then you came to New York ... And en route you stopped off in Columbus and Pittsburgh and tried to sell the editors on the idea of letting you write a New York column for them. You remembered O. O. McIntyre and how you used to read his fascinating stuff from the Big City ... You would put more pep into it than he did ... You offered the bored editors everything under the sun ... You would write for them free of charge for the first month ... You would represent them on stories anything, everything ... But they turned deaf ears ... You were just a kid, but you didn't know it ... And when you suggested a Broadway column matters didn't work out as they might have and you found Walter in the job ... And before long he made a great reputation for himself ... You always wanted to do the same ... That was about seven years ago.

Four or five times since then you were on the verge of getting in ... But each time circumstances changed themselves at the last minute ... And you felt bitter about it all ... It began to look as though you'd never get your Big Chance ... One day, four months ago, you were scheduled to sign with an evening journal for a daily column ... You were all set for a 3 o'clock meeting, but at 10 in the morning the publisher called you and said the whole deal was off ... He had a swell alibi ... And what if he didn't ... there was nothing you could do about it!

Well, you resigned yourself quickly, you could stand another disappointment ... You had lost most of your money in The Crash, and what little you were able to rescue you dropped in Berlin trying to be a show producer ... But you didn't have your heart in anything but writing a column ... That was funny ... At 3 o'clock that afternoon, your phone rang and Gaus'reau's secretary told you he wanted to see you ... You didn't put much stock in the call but you answered it doggedly ... He asked you if you wanted to do a Sunday gossip column ... You saw a kind smile cover his face and you got a quick flash of old Bill Bloss ... This time an editor was asking you to do a column ... You really got the first big thrill in your life ... You're 32 now and you were 17 then ... It took you 15 years to get to this moment ... And everybody thinks it's such a simple matter ... All you have to do is to walk in, tell an editor you want to write a column, get an office next to the composing room and start pounding on your typewriter. That's what they led you to believe in the School of Journalism out at Missouri ... It was their way of encouraging you.

Well, you got the Sunday column ... And immediately you started peering through the city's key-holes with a vengeance ... You had enthusiasm ... You had finally arrived!

When Walter collapsed after 7 years of the same kind of enthusiasm, they shoved you into his spotlight ... And fellow, that was a spotlight ... You were on top of the world writing for 10,000,000 daily readers ... If old Bill Bloss were only alive to see you now! ... If he could see you chatting with Jimmy Walker, lilbching with Gloria Swanson, arming it down Broadway with Texas Guinan, discussing the theater with Ziegfeld, talking over the radio, acting before the cameras ... Why, Yawitz, you're a lucky stiff, even if it did take you 15 years ... Now you're going to step out under your own head ... You're going to lose sleep haunting the night-spots and fighting the dawn for news ... Gossip ... News.

You're going to try to get higher and higher ... The temptation will be to develop a swelled head ... But remember, gas a swelled head is the most costly luxury in the world ... And that no matter how big it gets, they still bury you 6 feet deep ... Always remember the letter that fellow in Kansas City sent you a few days ago ... "Your name at the head of Winchell's col..." he wrote, "Brings back memories of 1918. I can't help recall the mug with the extremely tall headgear, the shell-rimmed glasses and the perpetually upturned nose ... who, to me, made an always interesting human study in colossal conceit ... Well, that fellow didn't differentiate between conceit and blind determination ... But you can take what he has to say seriously ... There's a lot to it.

Now you can welcome Walter back and thank him for the Big Chance his absence gave you ... And step out on your own!

Your severest critic, Paul Yawitz.

Tennis Play In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Some of the most brilliant tennis play ever seen in America is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison of the U. S. team are shown defeating Jack Crawford and Harry Hopman of Australia, thereby clinching this series in the Davis Cup eliminations. Each side plays a thrilling game, but the visitors from the other side of the world finally go down to defeat. All that now stands between the U. S. team's invasion of Europe is the team from Brazil, which will shortly be met in the Americans. There is a graphic running description of the game by the Globe Trotter.

Army bombers of the Eleventh Squadron, from March Field, Riverside, Cal., fly for the first time down the beautiful Yosemite valley. The planes skimming the precipitous side of the mountain walls, descend within a few hundred feet of the ground and fly over Nevada Falls three times as high as Niagara, with a drop of 594 feet.

MIDDIES PARADE

The graduating class at Annapolis presents a magnificent full-dress parade prior to graduation day. The march of the middies is hailed while Miss Mary K. Douglas of Manitowoc, Wis., presents the colors to Commander Louis Kern, of the Honor Company.

Leaping about like a kangaroo, Abe Coleman tries to win the title from Jim London at Los Angeles in one of the most thrilling wrestling matches ever staged. Abie leaps through the air feet first and several times London is hurled through the ropes by the very force of the attack. After a number of warnings, the referee stops Abie from leaping, after which Londos speedily pins Coleman to the floor.

DOGS COMPETE

The ritziest doggies in America compete for ribbons at the Morris and Essex Kennel Club show in Morristown, N. J., with society folk from all over the East looking on. One of the stellar attractions is a Yorkshire terrier who weighs only a pound but has a coat 19 inches long.

James L. Foley, a daredevil from Boston, makes a daring leap from the new Mt. Hope Bridge, Bristol, R. I., and lands in the river 160 feet below. Especially striking are the camera shots from overhead that follow Foley on his way down.

N. T. G. takes his famous Hollywood beauties to Palisades Park, N. J., to open the bathing beauty season. The girls show just what, if any, clothes will be worn at the beaches this season.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

It has been announced that the Scandals of Mr. White will close for the season after two weeks in Chicago, which will come to an end next Saturday night, as they call it in Chicago. There is said to be determination on the part of Mr. White to reassemble the company in the fall for a trip to the Pacific Coast, where all of the theatrical folks seem to want to go these days. In his tour of the road this year, Mr. White has tried an experiment that of presenting his revue in large auditoriums instead of regular theaters, scaling his admission charge down because the larger seating capacity meant just as much money in sum total. This, of course, has irked the theater managers no little, but Mr. White's attitude has been one of let 'em irk, taking the stand that the public was the body he wanted to reach, and in as large numbers as possible. Here he just missed playing in Syria Mosque because there was a concert booked for one of the nights he wanted to be there. In Chicago he is playing in the Civic Opera House.

Laughter of tears? That's the handkerchief rub. To weep or not to weep? The Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., or Will Hays, for short, has been conducting a survey, and promises an answer next week. The problem's answer has been sought among actors, authors, capitalists and others, in attempt to find out what kind of film, sadly sentimental or highly hilarious, the general public likes best. It must be the box-office is too darn fickle to supply the reply. It is noted for rallying to the support of both the sad ones and the funny ones, stipulating only that they be good.

* * *

Nina Wilcox Putnam, novelist, has been engaged to adapt for the screen the work of another novelist, "No More Orchids," written by Grace Perkins. Helen Coburn, New York stage actress, was told her 105 pounds were too few for a role in "Skyscraper Souls," so she took three weeks to put on 20 more of those avoirdupois, and got the job. Buster Keaton's next M-G-M comedy, "Speak Easily," will have Hedda Hopper in it. "Madison Square Garden" is the title of a film that will have Jack Oakie, James Gleason and Robert Armstrong in the leading roles. That feature-length comedy that will be done by Laurel and Hardy will be tagged "Pack Up Your Troubles," and it will have Paulette Goddard, former stage actress, making her first screen appearance. The Constance Bennett picture, filmed as "The Truth About Hollywood," has been retitled "What Price Hollywood?"

New Patio Celebrates Opening Friday

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

I SEE BY th. ..ers that Broadway has discovered that a young man by the name of George Raft has a definite news value. As, indeed, he has. Springing from obscurity, Georgie has suddenly become one of the most popular of the screen artists. He triumphed in two pictures—notably "Scarface"—and is now being featured in person at the Paramount Theater, on Broadway. Paramount pictures will star him in his next film offering. Thus, taking all in all, everything looks very rosy for the interesting Mr. Raft.

I've know George for many years and I'm plenty tickled with his success. The road to the top was by no means a feathery pathway for him. A dancer in the Broadway cafes some seven or eight years ago, he was just as frequently out of work as he was in. But he had a grand sense of humor and he could fight. And he was more than welcome at any table at which the Broadway boys might be sitting.

George always did have a yen for picture work. His resemblance to the late Rudolph Valentino was always marked and, when Valentino passed on, a few companies made tests of Raft. But nothing came of them. So Georgie merely kept on dancing.

If memory isn't playing me a dirty trick, it was almost four years ago that the young man decided to try his luck in Hollywood. I remember giving him a letter to Winnie Sheehan at that time but, very evidently, nothing sensational happened. The suspicion strikes me now that, if he hadn't had any letter from me, he might have been a star long before this.

I thought of Georgie quite frequently and we often spoke of him back East. He did do a dance in that early Texas Guinan picture—was it "The Beast of The Night Clubs?"—but aside from that, reports of his movements were very vague. Overnight, he scored. And, with a continued break in his story luck, he is liable to become one of the very greatest of our motion picture stars.

At this point, if George will be polite enough to take a little kidding as gently as possible, I would like to unfold something that happened between us some seven years ago. Inasmuch as we were pals at that time, he was not bashful in hinting to me that a little publicity wouldn't harm him in any way.

I quite agreed with him. Accordingly, on Sunday, December 20, 1925, I wrote:

"Anyone who labors under the delusion that there is no romance in show business has another think coming. The case of George Raft is but another example of a dream that came true.

"It couldn't have been more than a year ago that Raft was playing in vaudeville in an ordinary act. Nothing sensational about him. Well liked and all that, but just one of a thousand others. He was making an ordinary living and mighty thankful for it, too.

"He danced one night at the Texas Guinan Club. It was a mad, mad dance. His eyes fixed themselves on one certain spot. His feet flew like a Nurmi on the last lap. Faster. Faster. It was fascinating—almost uncanny. And when he finally stopped, exhausted, the night lifers applauded as they never had before.

"Last week found George Raft performing in four places. He danced at the Rivoli and the crowd cheered for five minutes. He dashed over to 'The City Chap' and stopped that musical attraction in its tracks. He went from there to the Parody Club, where he is a feature. And, finally, he performed once more at the Texas Tommy club.

"That was his schedule for the last seven days. And he could have had 20 other jobs if he so desired.

"George Raft, the obscure vaudevillian, is now earning $1,000 a week and there is more to come. Romance dead on Broadway? Don't fool yourself! . . .

That was Mr. Raft's first big press notice and I am very frank to admit that I colored it somewhat to help out my pal. He wasn't making exactly $1,000 a week. As a matter of fact, I think that $100 would have been closer to it. He didn't really stop that show for five minutes; it was closer to 20 seconds. But what the deuce? If you cannot help your friends a little, whom are you going to help?

On the night the story appeared, I found George in a cabaret. I tossed the article before him.

"There you are, kid," I asserted. "Get a load of that!"

Mr. Raft took the paper. I watched him carefully as he read the glorified notice from top to bottom. I anticipated his many words of fervent thanks when he had completed it. He reached the end. And he looked up.

"What's the matter?" he grunted. "Couldn't you find room for a picture?"

Spectators are gathering at the annual Sewickley horse show at the Allegheny Country Club ring today. The event began at 10:30 o'clock, later than usual, but a large crowd is in attendance. Seated in a box of the grandstand I noticed Anne Rose, in yellow crepe with a matching hat and a print frock with Katherine Collins in a frock of chartreuse green [illegible] piqué, having a wide collar of dark green, with which she wore a white turban.

Little Jane Stevenson, Mrs. and Mrs. C. A. Painter [illegible] brown crepe suit with a navy orange scarf and brown hat. Mrs. Henry Clay Buchman in a white mesh[illegible] frock [illegible] short sleeves and she wore a navy blue straw hat. Mrs. Smith T. Patterson I saw in a [illegible] habit, as was her daughter, Nancy Marie, and Marguerite McCahill in riding habits with their mother and father, Mr. David J. McCahill. Mrs. McCahill chose navy blue crepe with matching hat.

Mrs. J. O. Burgwin is wearing a tiered wool skirt with a blouse of beige doeskin fabric and a brown felt hat. Mrs. Lewis A. Park is in riding clothes, and I noticed little Virginia Burgwin with her mother.

Among the brides of the first day of June was Eleanor Margaret Jones, daughter of the Henry A. Joneses of Sheridan avenue who became the bride of Dr. William Wilson Wightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wightman of McPherson boulevard, yesterday at 2:30 o'clock in the Jones home with the Rev. Dr. George C. Fisher officiating.

June Bride

Natalie Jones was her sister's maid of honor, and Robert E. Wightman was his brother's best man. Esther Zurcher, of Canton, O., a cousin of the bride played the wedding music.

The bride is a graduate of Miss Ellis' School and Goucher College, and the bridegroom of the University of Pittsburgh medical school.

Mary Elizabeth Floyd, daughter of the Thomas Atterbury McGinleys, of Sewickley Heights, is leaving June 16 for Dayton, O., to attend a wedding. The bride-to-be is Elizabeth Hill Smith, daughter of Frank Hill Smith, and she'll marry Spencer Janney, of Baltimore, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 5:30 o'clock that afternoon. There will be a large reception in the Smith home later.

To Attend Wedding

Mary Elizabeth will be the guest of the James Bushes while in Dayton.

And speaking of brides, did you know the David Campbell Chaplins have left for a Bermuda honeymoon? And they'll reside in Edgeworth when they return. Mrs. Chaplin was Barbara Perry Irwin, you'll recall, before her marriage on Wednesday in her home in Sewickley.

* * *

And another bride of the first day of June was Martha Elizabeth Cooper, daughter of the Frederick M. Coopers, who became the bride of Frank Raymond Stockton, of Coraopolis, formerly of Scranton, in the First Presbyterian Church of Coraopolis.

Cooper Nuptials

The ceremony took place before an embankment of ferns and crotons lighted by tall tapers. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin, made simply, having long, close-fitting sleeves and full train. Her veil was of tulle finished with a cap of tulle, and she carried lilies of the valley.

Margaret Davidson, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Charles Agnew Cooper, Mrs. Robert Cooper Davidson, Mrs. F. Stewart Cupps, of Coraopolis, and Mrs. Harold Frederick, of Spokane, all wore similar gowns of white chiffon, made quaintly with puffed sleeves, high basques, with jackets, and green girdles. Their hats were of green matching the girdles, and they all wore lace mits and carried muffs of lilies of the valley and gardenias, with the exception of the maid of honor, whose muff was of yellow marguerites and gardenias.

George Hartwood Hodges, of Barbeton, O., served as best man and ushers included Dr. [illegible] Lathrop Stockton, of Kansas, Mich., and James Daniel Stockton, of Jamestown, N. Y., brothers of the bridegroom; Charles Agnew Cooper, Charles D. Davidson, Robert Cooper Davidson and Richard T. Davidson, of Coraopolis; John Marshall Budd, of St. Paul, Minn., and Donald Chadwick, of South Orange, N. J.

Men in Party

There was a reception in the bride's home, which was decorated with spring flowers. The bridal table was decked with spring flowers in pastel shades, roses, larkspur and delphinium.

Chicago's Payless Teachers Held Heroic

CHICAGO, June 2.—(INS.)—Praise of the heroism of Chicago's school teachers for working without getting their pay is contained in an exhaustive survey of the city's educational system which today was before the Board of Education.

By contrast, the report, submitted by a special commission of Columbia University professors and experts, condemned the business administration of the schools for reckless extravagance, incompetence and carelessness in handling taxpayers' money.

50th Year Marked At Institution For Aged

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Caring for aged people is not charity; it is paying dividends on an investment already made; it is an inadequate discharge of society's debt to lives that have been lived, the Rev. Dr. William R. Farmer said yesterday afternoon at the fiftieth anniversary of the Home for Aged Protestants, Wilkinsburg.

Several hundred men and women prominent in society and business circles attended the golden anniversary of the sturdy-walled institution where more than 50 old people are sheltered and cared for. Mrs. W. A. Dunlap, president of the board, welcomed the guests and introduced the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, who offered the invocation and presided over the meeting, the guests being seated on the wide verandas and under the great trees on the lawn.

Brief speeches were made by the Rev. P. J. Chilcote, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Helm, the Rev. Dr. William Porkess and the Rev. W. Frank Reber, all of whom have conducted religious services at the home. Representatives of the Men's Bible Class of the Swissvale Presbyterian Church and the Young People's Society of the Callendar Memorial Methodist Church also spoke.

Talks Given

And then, to crown the occasion, there were two groups of songs, chosen with a nice sense of the appropriate, by Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, with Earl Mitchell playing her accompaniments. Before the program there was music by the Westinghouse Band. Punch and cakes were served by a committee of aides who included young society maids and matrons.

Gifts totaling more than $13,000 were made to the fiftieth anniversary fund by individual donors.

LITTLE PUFFED SLEEVES ARE A HIT IN ALL THE NEW COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 2.—Paris dressmakers evidently agree upon one thing, at least—that little puffed sleeves are a sure-fire hit. They use them everywhere, from sports sweaters to evening gowns. Strangely enough, they seem perfectly at home on either of these costumes, and everything between, as well.

* * *

HOWEVER, the fact that the dressmakers like them is not the only reason for their popularity. Women like to wear them for many reasons; they make one's shoulders look wider, for one thing—an effect which usually gives the illusion of narrowed hips. Then, they are especially easy to wear; they do not immediately identify a dress as being for one special occasion or another, and are as appropriate for afternoon bridge as for dining out, or for the theater.

* * *

TODAY'S SKETCHES show how well little puffed sleeves fit into practically every scheme of dressing—especially of those dresses of the late afternoon or dinner type.

* * *

ONE IS A dinner dress of the unsophisticated kind (at right). It is typical of Lyolene's line—a simple affair that was designed for a very young woman. It is in white chiffon, with a skirt that hangs well below the ankles, with plenty of fullness at the hem. The blouse, also of white chiffon, is entirely covered with little embroidered flowered eyelets, in mercerized thread.

* * *

THE OTHER dress is one which may be worn by a more mature woman, yet the puffed sleeves are not at all out of place. The gown is from Lucile and is fashioned from an interestingly patterned silk crepe—spattered white dots on a black background, the entire fabric marked with gold lame stripes.

* * *

AS THE sketch shows, both neckline and waistline are held in place by ties and bows. The slashed blouse shows a little undervest bright with yellow and red.

Do you know her secret of Youthful Charm?

"ONLY the woman who looks it is afraid to admit her age," says Nazimova. "But I am proud of mine—I am over forty!

"It is easy to be lovely at sixteen, but to be still lovelier at forty . . . well, that is easy, too, if a woman is wise! Actresses rarely look their age, you notice. Like me, they guard their complexions with Lux Toilet Soap.

Correct Manners

Telephone Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One afternoon while I was at my cousin's home the telephone rang. My cousin answered it and the person calling asked for me. My cousin then asked who was calling and because the person calling wouldn't tell him who it was, my cousin hung up.

I told my cousin that he should not have asked who was calling, if the call wasn't for him, and that he should have called me as soon as the person asked for me. He thinks that because it was his home, he had a right to ask who it was.

Which of us is right? A.

Your cousin did have a right to ask the name of the person who was calling . . . not at all, as he says, because it was his home, but because this is often done to make things easier . . . but nothing on earth can excuse his rudeness in hanging up the receiver when the person who was calling refused to give the name. But, as a matter of fact, both were guilty of rudeness . . . your friend who was calling, who should have given the name, and your cousin who lost his temper and his manners when he hung up the receiver.

Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to give an afternoon luncheon and bridge to introduce my daughter-in-law to my family. Although they have been married for four months, circumstances have been such that she, coming from another city, has not met any of her newly acquired relatives. L. G.

I suggest that you write your invitations in the form of a note—something like this:

Dear Dorothy:

I am planning a luncheon and bridge in honor of my new daughter, Julia, on Friday, the first of June, at my home at one o'clock, and it would make me very happy if you will come. You will—won't you?—for I want very much to have you two dear people know each other.

Dearest love to you, and the hope to see you on the first.

Affectionately.

Senator Wagner Talks Tonight On WCAE

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, who spoke seven weeks ago over WCAE in connection with the anti-prohibition meeting in Buffalo, is heard again over WCAE tonight as guest speaker with Louis Sobol, featuring the latest bootleg activities. Senator Wagner recently proposed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at a hearing of the Senate finance committee, and is a member of the Senate committee on investigation of short selling on the New York Stock Exchange. He was a Pittsburgh visitor two years ago, when he personally observed election conditions here.

The musical portion of the program is presented by Wayne King, playing from the Aragon ballroom, Chicago, and Joe Moss and his orchestra, heard from New York.

Immediately following the dance hour, Russ Columbo's orchestra is heard at 11, followed by Harry Reser's Eskimos at 11:15 and Cab Calloway's Cotton Club Band at 11:45.

One of the oddest characters ever to face a microphone is heard during the Coffee Matinee program on KDKA today at 5, when Will Cuppy, clam-digging hermit of Jones Island and author of "How to Tell Your Friends from the Apes," gives the first of a new series of weekly talks.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is heard over an NBC network including WCAE today when she appears as guest speaker during the Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs broadcast from 3:15 to 4:15. In order to permit WCAE listeners to hear the entire program the Utility Hall broadcast with Karen Plagnes, previously scheduled at 4, is heard 15 minutes later today.

Program Pointers

The inaugural program of a new series of Chase and Sanborn programs, featuring Georgie Price well-known stage star, with Benny Kreuger's Orchestra, is heard on WJAS tonight at 7:45. On tonight's program, which marks Price's debut as a regular microphone artist, he offers three distinct types of songs: "March of Time," a dramatic piece with recitation; an original comedy number, "Imagine My Embarassment," and "Singing a Vagabond Song" a la Harry Richman, a friend and stage companion of Price's.

"On the Banks of the Wabash," which Paul Dreiser wrote in collaboration with his brother, Theodore Dreiser, the author, is featured by the Revelers with orchestral accompaniment on WACE tonight at 9.

The Band Moderne, under the baton of Will Potter, which previously has been heard Saturday nights, opens a new series of programs on WJAS tonight at 6:10.

The South Sea Islanders, a string and vocal ensemble frequently heard on NBC networks, presents the fourth of a special group of programs for Pittsburgh listeners since their arrival here this week, from KDKA tomorrow at 3:45.

Fan Fare

If a list of artists and their hours on the air were compiled, Vera Eakin's name would probably be high on the roll . . . Vera, who is staff pianist at WABC, has averaged half a dozen programs each day . . . In addition to her work as accompanist, she is heard as soloist in such programs as the "Columbia Artist Recital" and "Musical Americana" . . . Grace Moore has three automobiles, but still likes to ride up Fifth avenue on a bus . . . James Melton has rigged up an alarm clock that, instead of ringing, starts his phonograph playing "Sunrise and You."

Miss Eakin

George Olsen opens at the Hollywood Gardens in New York this month, and, instead of featuring a quartet with his band, he plans to have a three-ring circus with trapeze artists, clowns 'n' everything.

Fate? Knute Rockne tried to disparage Walter O'Keefe, the "magic carpet's" pilot-to-be, from acting on the stage—and almost succeeded, but O'Keefe got his first chance to write lyrics that eventually landed him in the theater as a result of infantile paralysis. While in bed he wrote several song hits.

Question Box

Who takes the part of "Skippy" on the radio? Aren't Mario and Harry on the air any more? What are their real names?—M. B. and M. L. G.

The utmost secrecy surrounds the identities of the children in the "Skippy" programs. The children, we understand, are bound by contract not to reveal their identities. Mario and Harry are off the WWSW waves for the summer. Their real names are Mario Busatto and Harry Applebarth.

BOGGS & BUHL

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- How This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Wives Should Strive to Keep Happiness in Homes

Should a gal work at "holding her husband," or is that idea all hooey?

If he wants to wander, should the Missis say, "Go to it, and welcome, if that's the way you feel?" A guy who has to be 'held' isn't worth the bother.

That's Lita's notion.

"Why should a woman work herself to death trying to keep a man fascinated?" she snorts. "Isn't it just as much up to him to keep marriage a success as it is up to her? Why shouldn't a man appreciate his wife, without her having to put on an act for him all the time?

Do you agree with her?

"My dear Miss Martin:

"I just want to say a few words about something that has me on the warpath and I hope you will print them instead of throwing them in the waste basket.

BURDEN ON WIVES

"It's about this business of 'holding your husband' that we hear so much of. It seems as if you can't pick up a paper or a magazine any more without seeing a bunch of 'hints to wives' about how to keep the big boy in the home fold, and it makes me boil.

"To my mind, it's all hooey. Why don't they ever preach about how a man should hold his wife? Isn't it just as much up to a man to make marriage a success as it is up to a woman? When he has married a woman, shouldn't he appreciate her and what she does for him without her having to keep forever trying to 'keep him fascinated?'

"Why on earth should a woman work her head off trying to keep her husband home?

"There is entirely too much of this one-sided idea of what a woman should do to keep her man from wandering off after some vamp. It puts a burden on wives who usually have something to do besides keeping themselves dolled up and being entertainers, especially if they have children, and it makes men conceited and gives them the idea that keeping the home fires burning is not up to them.

REFUSES TO HOLD HIM

"I say that if my husband wants to 'wander,' it's 'go to it and welcome,' if that's the way you feel.' My own personal opinion is that a husband who has to be 'held' is not worth the bother.

"And don't think I don't love mine, because I do. But I think it's up to him to put himself out for me a little too. All the 'holding' shouldn't be on my side, and if he should think it is, well, it's just too bad. But I think I'd lose my respect for him and say 'Git.'

What's your idea? Don't you think husbands should 'hold' wives?

LITA.

Of course I do, sister, and any wise man will make plenty of effort to do it. A slovenly, grumpy man who doesn't try to please his wife deserves all he gets.

Then why all this excitement about wives holding husbands?

Because after all, marriage is a woman's game, sister, and wives need husbands more than husbands need wives.

Yes, I know, women now have jobs and girls no longer need to marry in order to eat regularly. But any woman who wants a family, as every girl does, and who wants to real that family in happiness and safety, needs a husband and a home just as much as her great-grandmother did.

That home isn't just a romantic gratification to her as it is to her husband. It's a vital necessity. It's her job. And if she has an ounce of sense she'll work 24 hours per day to hold that job.

SHOULD PLEASE HUBBY

If you had a bang-up job downtown, wouldn't you do all you could to hang onto it? Wouldn't you be mighty careful to consider the boss' likes and dislikes and do things the way you knew he wanted them done? Wouldn't you try to be as neat and attractive and capable and pleasant as you knew how?

Of course you would. You'd work hard to keep things smooth.

Then shouldn't you take as much pains to keep your husband happy and in love with you as you would to keep the boss thinking you're a good steno?

It may be your husband's "duty" to be faithful and loyal to you because you married him, no matter how hard you are to look at or how dull you let yourself get, but you can't hold love by dinning "duty" into its ears.

And since you've invested your life in that love, why not work to keep it a going concern?

Nothing Is More Important Than Being Your Best at Home, Says Fay King

ALWAYS LOOK CLEAN AND CRISP
LISTEN AS RESPECTFULLY, AND WITHOUT INTERRUPTION, TO EACH OTHER AS YOU WOULD TO COMPANY
AW SHUT-UP! CAN'T YOU SEE IM BUSY!
"GONE NATIVE"
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

"Gone native" is the most fatal thing that can happen to those who have positions of trust at the outposts of the world.

It means they have relaxed all personal discipline and no longer trouble to look or act in a way which inspires respect and admiration.

It seems to me that some marriages suffer from this same idea of "going native."

Home becomes like some isolated post where nothing matters any more.

Little by little they drop the niceties of manner and consideration which make or mar a marriage.

Nothing is more important than being your best at home.

Never relax for a single day in making your home as perfect as possible, in cleanliness, comfort and content.

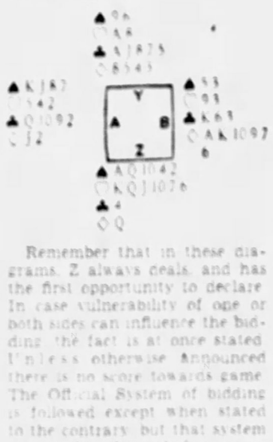
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Count Losers—Economize Winners

When hands contain many probable tricks count your possible losing tricks. In case the cards of your side insure game by economizing your winners never risk a possible loss of that game by wasting two high cards on one trick just for the sake of scoring an added trick. Play safely. The holders of the hand shown below could not fail to go game with careful play. They lost game through taking a needless chance.



Remember that in these diagrams, Z always deals, and has the first opportunity to declare. In case vulnerability of one or both sides can influence the bidding, the fact is at once stated. Unless otherwise announced there is no score towards game. The Official System of bidding is followed except when stated to the contrary, but that system cannot be charged for errors made by bidders.

Z thought that his hand was a bit too weak for a demand bid, so he used the semi-forcing declaration of 2-Hearts. Y responded with 3-Clubs, B overbid 3-Diamonds, and Z shifted into 3-Spades. Y ended contracting with 4-Hearts.

The opening lead was A's J of diamonds, that B covered with his K, dropping the declarer's lone Q. Z ruffed the second lead of diamonds. The hand was not of a type that called for attempts to have dummy trump off losing spades, so Z won the first trump lead in his own hand, the second heart lead was won with dummy's Ace, leaving B void of hearts and A with only the 5.

Dummy's 9 of spades was led back. When B played a low spade, Z put up his Q, and the trick was won by A's K. Having no more cards of his partner's suits, A returned to his fourth-best club. Dummy's Ace took the trick, and the last spade was led from that hand. Z's finesse of his own 10 was won by A's J. Another club was led. Z trumped and laid down his Ace of spades, hoping for an even break of that suit, but B had no more, so the trick had to be conceded. A three lost spade tricks and one heart trick put Z down one trick on his contract. When six cards of a suit are missing, there are 65 chances in 100 that the missing six will not be divided 3-3 between opponents, and Z should have anticipated this bad break in the distribution of spades.

Going down one trick on a hand worth a spread is bad strategy. In this case there was no excuse. When dummy's 9 of spades was led there were only two higher cards of the suit capable of winning the trick. The 9 should have been finessed and A should have been allowed to win the trick. When Y gained entry with dummy's Ace of clubs, his finesse of the 10 of spades was all right. Z's fatal error was in wasting two high cards upon the first lead of spades. It would have been better for Z to have first pulled trumps and then given A-B two spade tricks. After that he could have spread his cards and claimed the balance of tricks. Trying to win an extra trick in spades cost Z game.

Business in the Home

An account book is a necessity in the life of the housewife who wishes to come out even at the end of her weekly, semi-monthly or monthly budget these days. Some idea as to the amount of money needed until hubby's next pay day is the only way to keep in bounds as to catering and buying for the home. The woman who budgets her accounts rarely needs extra help for household expenses.

Madge Wins First Round of Foolery Bout With Husband

At my playful challenge, Dicky made a dash for me, picked me up bodily and carried me to the side of the room, set me on the top of a high bookcase and then sprang back laughing gleefully at me.

"You will defy your big, handsome husband," he demanded, grinning widely at me. "Now say after me, 'I am telling you all because I'm scared of a great, big, strong man.'"

It was the most banal sort of foolery, but I thrilled to it, and as I heard him twist to his own purpose the mocking challenge I had given him, I wrinkled my nose at him, and asked softly:

"And suppose I don't, what then?"

He stepped back a pace, folded his arms and looked up at me judicially.

"Then, I think, that's a very good roost for a naughty little wren," he said with a grin, for he knows my dislike of high places. I realized as I looked down from the high, wide top of our built-in bookcase, that I would risk a sprained ankle if I jumped down, and I knew that Dicky would foil any slower method of descent. Yet the spirit of mischievous rebellion within me would not permit me to obey his ridiculous dictum.

MADGE VICTORIOUS

There were but three things upon the top of the bookcase besides myself—a low bowl of autumn flowers and two pieces of Mexican peasant pottery. I picked up the two pieces of pottery, one in each hand, and Dicky mockingly threw his arm across his face.

"Please aim for me," he begged, "not anything else. Then I'll be safe."

"Don't be silly!" I adjured with plausible pettiness. "I'm afraid these things will be broken with this foolery. Will you please set them somewhere else?"

"With the greatest of pleasure, Madame," he said, and put them upon the table near him.

"And now the flowers, please," I said, holding out the bowl. As he turned his back to set the receptacle down, I swung my body up to the top of the bookcase and lay down at full length upon it, propping my head upon my curved arm. When he swung back, I smiled down at him lazily.

"If you don't mind getting me a pillow," I said with pretended drowsiness, "I think I'd like a nap. It's wonderfully comfortable up here."

For a split second he looked at me, his eyes filled with laughing surprise, and—yes—I saw headily—distinct admiration. Then he came back to the bookcase and held out his arms.

"You win that round," he said. "Jump down here and tell me your story on your own terms. But look out for me next time, Woman!"

BEGINS STORY

I sat up, swung my legs over the edge and jumped as he directed me. He caught me, eased me into an armchair, sat down upon the edge of it, and gave my hair a quick ruffling.

"Just to keep you from getting delusions of grandeur," he said, grinning. "Now shoot the works."

But the spirit of mischief had taken hold of me and I saw how I could get a "rise" out of him.

"Before I get down to the real story," I said slowly and with apparent soberness, "there's something I ought to tell you, which I fear will displease you."

"All right, Fatima," he grinned. "Trot out the key of the forbidden chamber."

"It's simply this," I said, trying to look worried. "Mr. Veritzen asked me to read him the last act, and when I finished—you know I had voice lessons long ago from Madame — that famous old actress who wanted me to train with her for the stage—he was quite insistent upon my taking the leading role in my play."

DOUBTS VERITZEN

He had been frowning while I talked, but at my last sentence his face cleared and he laughed.

"Now, I'll tell one," he said. "Gee! you had me going for a second. I've always known, of course, that your voice is something out of the ordinary, both in timber and training, and I fancy Madame was right when she thought you had the 'divine spark.' And, of course, everybody knows old Phil's penchant for discovering that 'spark' in the mind, soul, heart, or what have you, of beautiful women, and making Veritzen stars of them. I imagine he'd like nothing better than to try it in your case, not only because he's still crazy about you, but because he'd tremendously enjoy making me uncomfortable.

"But you overshot the mark when you said he wanted you to take the leading role in your play. For he's a cagy old bird, and he wouldn't put any one into even a minor role of a production of his unless he himself had had a chance to drill the actor. Nay, nay, Little One. He hand-picks his performers, long before it's time for apples to fall and ripens them after his own processes. Try another one on me, and see if you have better luck with your credulity."

In the Umbrella Stand

One housewife who uses a china umbrella stand, claims she has kept it intact these many years by keeping a large sponge in the bottom of it. Then when an umbrella is dropped into the stand the sponge prevents cracking. It also will absorb the water and is readily wrung out.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

These are the days when fever strikes into the feet and toes twinge like all get out. Put the pedals in a tepid bath to which baking soda has been added. Dry and anoint with cocoabutter, frictioning it in with the flattened palms. Compresses of large towels wrung out of cold water have a way of soothing little dogs that are hot and tired.

A change of shampoo medium sometimes corrects a case of oily hair. It is particularly necessary that every bit of soap suds should be removed; it can't be done if the head is ducked into the wash bowl several times. A bath spray combined with a strong current of warm water will chase soap out, but if you're still not sure, rinse the hair in a bowlful of water to which three tablespoonsfuls of vinegar have been added.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

When Insomnia Drives Away Sleep, Drugs Are Dangerous

Few other things so depress the level of health and disturb the nervous system as the loss of power to sleep well. Insomnia is a real curse.

Dr. Copeland

The average person requires about 8 hours of sleep daily, but children and old people are exceptions to this rule. Children require at least 10 to 12 hours of sleep, while the aged may find seven hours requisite for their needs.

Requisites for restful sleep are:

1—A well-ventilated room.

2—A comfortable bed.

3—No heavy meals, tea or coffee before retiring.

4—Freedom from worry.

During sleep the blood supply to the brain normally is somewhat lessened, and any condition to increase the supply will interfere with normal repose.

The causes of insomnia may be divided into groups. First there is insomnia due to pain. Any type of pain may induce wakefulness. The pain in some blood diseases is severe at night, while muscular and joint pains are common in gouty subjects.

Pruritis, or itching, may banish sleep. Itching may be traced to diabetes, auto-intoxication, constipation or indigestion.

General irritability of the nerves may be at fault, and neurotic individuals are much inclined to attacks of insomnia.

Over-fatigue, worry or mental anxiety frequently cause insomnia. There is a real relationship between loss of sleep and the mental state.

Certain disturbances of the circulation of the blood drive away sleep. Arterial changes or heart weakness may make nights restless for convalescents from acute diseases.

An otherwise normal person may go to sleep at the regular hour, but awaken sometime during the night and not be able to return to sleep. This is often due to indigestion or constipation.

To resort to drugs to induce sleep is decidedly dangerous. Many a drug addict began his downward career in this manner. If insomnia threatens to become chronic, the sensible thing to do is to consult a physician to discover the cause.

Taking a hot drink before retiring will sometimes induce sleep. Insomnia should not be neglected, for when it has become chronic it will break down the most rugged system.

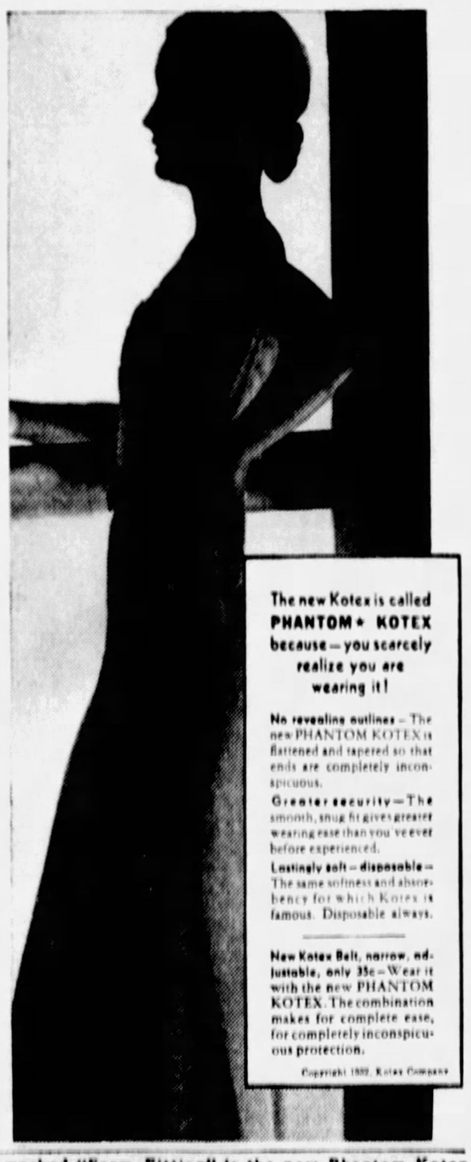
SANITARY NAPKIN (U. S. Pat. No. 1,857,854)

Most important improvement in sanitary protection since the invention of Kotex itself in 1920.



The new Kotex is called PHANTOM* KOTEX because—you scarcely realize you are wearing it!
No revealing outlines—The new PHANTOM KOTEX is flattened and tapered so that ends are completely inconspicuous.
Greater security—The smooth, snug fit gives greater wearing ease than you've ever before experienced.
Lastingly soft—disposable—The same softness and absorbency for which Kotex is famous. Disposable always.
New Kotex Belt, narrow, adjustable, only 35c—Wear it with the new PHANTOM KOTEX. The combination makes for complete ease, for completely inconspicuous protection.
Copyright 1932, Kotex Company

AT LAST! A radically new design in sanitary protection. You are scarcely aware that you have it on. Made, of course, by Kotex—originators of the modern sanitary napkin.

It is called PHANTOM * KOTEX. Why? Because the ends are so flattened and tapered that it leaves no outlines even under the closest-fitting of gowns. Not the slightest bulk suggested even under the filmiest of summer silks. And—for those who require extra protection—Super-Phantom Kotex is ideal. There's extra protective surface but the ends are so skilfully flattened as to be completely inconspicuous.

Kotex features retained

The special Kotex features you have always appreciated are retained, of course. It is soft after hours of use; wonderfully absorbent; treated to deodorize; can be worn, with equal protection, on either side; disposable, easily.

More than 24 million pads were used in hospitals alone last year.

Insist upon getting genuine Kotex, when you buy it already wrapped. Each tapered end of the new pad is stamped "Kotex" now—so you can't get inferior substitutes.

Kotex prices are today the lowest in Kotex history. This new improvement comes to you at no increase in price. All dealers have the new PHANTOM KOTEX.

HOW SHALL I TELL MY DAUGHTER?

Many a mother wonders. Now you simply hand your daughter the little booklet entitled, "Marjorie May's Twelfth Birthday." For free copy, address Mary Pauline Callender, Room 2140, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Hoover Defers to Wife In Dry Stand, Report

—By MARK SHIELDS—

According to reports out of Washington, it is Mrs. Hoover who is restraining the President from departing from his previous prohibition stand, and adopting a course approximately satisfactory to the wet element of the Republican party.

Mr. Shields

The persuasion of Senator Borah and the dry exhorters could be swept aside, it is said, but for the President's deference to Mrs. Hoover's strong conviction that prohibition is the way to social and economical betterment for the average man and woman, and their children.

This report is printed for what it is worth, but certainly there is something more potent than the threat of Senator Borah holding the President from publicly approving the utterances of those members of his cabinet who have declared that prohibition does not prohibit, and that the liquor laws should be relaxed.

Pennsylvania Republican leaders point out that as a practical political adviser Senator Borah has little to recommend himself. They explain that he may believe it is moral to be dry, but when he sets up as an oracle predicting that moistness is political suicide it is only fair to examine some of his past performances to see how worthwhile his advice is.

For example, they recall that it was Borah who almost single-handed forced the President during the 1928 campaign to pledge a special session on farm relief, and to compel the fulfillment of that pledge after election, when most Republicans wished it forgotten.

* * *

Borah Unlikely to Form Third Party

Few Presidents or Governors going into office want a Congress or Legislature on their hands immediately. They desire time to turn around, to order their political houses without the necessity of compromising in order to secure certain legislative concessions.

It will be remembered that the session called by Mr. Hoover got out of hand, so far as a restricted tariff tinkering was concerned, and brought forth the Smoot-Hawley bill, a tariff measure which in the coming campaign will cause the Republicans plenty of trouble in many states.

There was one spot, argue the Pennsylvanians, where Borah showed little conception of political repercussions.

Further, they have little fear the Idaho senator will form a third party, or attempt a bolt. They point to past history to support their contentions. In some previous campaigns he has not been pleased with the Republican nominee, but he merely sulked, and committed no overt acts of hostility. Moreover, it is urged that a third party founded merely on opposition to prohibition would not enlist all the Progressives, notably those of Wisconsin, the only state to vote a third-party majority in the election of 1924, the last in which a revolt occurred against the two old groups by offshoots of both.

The majority of the Pennsylvania delegation feels strongly on this subject of prohibition, and unless a few gentlemen who have declared themselves, including some from Pittsburgh, go in for stultification on a large scale, it is difficult to see how they can yield without a public fight to any pussyfooting on the subject.

* * *

State Politicians Not Enthusing Over Nominee

It is improbable Pennsylvania politicians ever have gone into a campaign with less enthusiasm for their nominee. There was even more cheering among the professionals for Taft in 1912, because he elected to sink with the regluars rather than swim with the tide of popular clamor.

A point of criticism is the apparent decision by the President and his advisers to make James R. Garfield chairman of the Resolutions Committee to present a platform. Garfield was part of the Bull Moose third party movement in 1912, and among the workers in the trenches here he is referred to as a "renegade."

This, however, will not prevent the Pennsylvania Republicans exerting themselves sufficiently, for they wish to hold the patronage of the National Government. In the past, however, the chief function of Pennsylvanians has not been the furnishing of votes—there was always a surplus of those in this state—but money. This year it is improbable there will be the customary generosity for political purposes.

Discussion following the "dry" speech of County Chairman William H. Coleman before the Republican County Committee meeting last Saturday develops that his declaration that the wet and dry issue was a minor one between Senator James J. Davis and Gen. Smedley Butler was no sudden opinion.

Coleman is reported to have told some leading county Republicans during the recent campaign that he doubted the expediency of espousing the wet cause in an election. Apparently he was not convinced otherwise by the results of the senatorial fight, but looks only to the outcome in his own congressional district, where Clyde Kelly, a dry, was renominated to Congress.

As a matter of fact, there was no real wet and dry fight in that congressional district, and the outcome was by no means a prohibition referendum.

TWO MEN HELD IN B.-L. CASE

Howard E. Wandless, secretary of the Modern Building and Loan Association, and Charles E. Donkin, of New York, were held for court at a hearing before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan yesterday. Informations were sworn by George F. Taylor, Jr., Deputy State Secretary of Banking.

Wandless, who waived hearing, was charged with conspiracy to defraud and embezzlement. He accuses Donkin of extorting money from him. Donkin was remanded to jail in default of bail on charges of conspiracy to defraud, extortion and accessory to embezzlement in connection with an alleged shortage of approximately $80,000 in the funds of the Modern Building and Loan Association, 433 Fourth avenue.

Donkin, alias Charles Chalmers, was brought to Pittsburgh from New York May 22 by detectives after Wandless told police he had more than 50 threatening letters and telegrams purporting to be from Donkin and had paid him sums of money over a period of 10 years.

Tax Payer Now Mountaineer for Long, Hard Pull

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The reason for Republican economy right now is that there ain't any more.

It has reached the Ethel Barrymore school of dramatics. That's all there is.

And the taxpayer? Well, that old hill hoss is now a mountain mule.

He's on the upgrade. And he's going to keep climbing for the next ten years pulling the heaviest load in history.

The pursuit of happiness is now a paper chase. Half of the paper is amendments and the other half is new tax bills.

The world concedes that France is in great financial shape. Did you know that no Frenchman pays a direct tax except through sales?

He pays on his purchases, necessities and luxuries.

The biggest tax of all is on matches and tobacco. And a Frenchman is an expert on borrowing those.

M'FEDRICK FIRED FROM COUNTY ROAD POST

Board Replaces Labor Quiz Figure and Others; Changes Lop Off Jobs, Reduce Pay

James W. McFedrick, division superintendent of roads, has been removed from office by County Commissioners. His salary was $3,380.

McFedrick's name was mentioned last week by a witness in the investigation of the use of county labor and supplies by individuals. It was declared he had the grass cut at his home with county labor.

The position was filled by L. I. Robbins, of McKeesport, at $2,500 a year.

ROAD FOREMAN NAMED

Other appointments announced yesterday were W. F. Linsley, of Bridgeville, road foreman; Kenneth Baird, of Bellevue, and Walter Subanowski, of 1100 Carson street, policemen.

William J. Buch, plant engineer at the Liberty tubes, was discharged and his position filled by Charles Queenan, of Dormont.

Commissioners have taken further steps in the reorganization of the divisions of roads and bridges. The six divisions in the road maintenance department have been reduced to three, each of which contains two road districts.

SALARIES SET

The salaries of division engineers were set at $3,000 a year; road district foremen, $2,500 a year; clerks, $1,800, and assistant road foremen, $1,500.

In the division of bridges, salaries for the engineers range from $3,600 to $2,500 a year. A few employed under bond issue funds will be kept until the county bond issue projects now under construction are completed.

The reorganization for the most part, however, means a lopping off of positions and in numerous instances a reduction of salaries. The economies have been forced the Commissioners in order to balance the budget, Commissioner C. C. McGovern declared.

"AN' HE BIT ME—"

MARY JANE BLOBNER TELLING 'DOLLY' ALL ABOUT HER BITE

Miss Mary, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Blobner, 1123 Woodbourne avenue, Brookline, bitten by a small white dog near her home, starting a widespread police search for the dog, perhaps a victim of rabies. This is an exclusive Sun-Telegraph picture.

BROOKLINE GIRL BITTEN BY DOG

Search for a missing dog which might have rabies was being carried on in Brookline today, while developments were watched in the condition of a 5-year-old kindergarten pupil who was attacked by the animal.

Mary Jane Blobner was walking in Brookline boulevard, near Stebbins avenue, when the dog bit her on the leg. A second child and her mother, walking with Mary Jane, were not attacked.

Mrs. Joseph Blobner, of 1123 Woodbourne avenue, Mary Jane's mother, reported that a woman then hurried away with the dog. It resembled a fox terrier, white, and wore a brown shoulder harness, witnesses said.

LEWIS SCORES COAL MEN AS FAILURES

Miners Always 'Oppressed,' He Declares, in Urging Passage of Control Bill

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—In a vigorous appeal for federal regulation of the bituminous coal industry, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, told a Senate committee today that the miners of America and the world have long "been oppressed."

Tracing the history of mining struggles from 300 years ago to the present, Lewis referred to the recent troubles in Ohio. He said:

"Just the other day there, the mine workers went on strike because they thought they could no longer live when the operators attempted to reduce their pay from 40 to 38 cents a ton. The mine operators sent strangers to take their places.

"The miners became enraged and the Governor had to send troops to maintain order."

Lewis expressed the view that the coal situation is to a large degree responsible for the present general economic condition which he said "borders on being a national catastrophe."

The labor official urged the Davis-Kelly bill, which would place the industry under a federal commission.

Mine operators, Lewis said, "have demonstrated a lack of consideration for the human elements of the industry." He said:

"Collectively, they are the most inefficient group engaged in American enterprise."

His booming voice rising, Lewis asserted the operators seek to "sell the blood and sinew and bone of the hundreds of men who engage in the industry and to sell the future of their children."

PRESBYTERIANS BACK EUGENICS

DENVER, June 2.—(AP.)—Professing satisfaction with the accomplishments of the One Hundred and Forty-fourth General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., the ministerial and lay delegates today had left for their homes.

Church leaders pronounced as outstanding achievements of the assembly the votes of confidence given the General Council and existing government of the church and the admission of women to the General Council for the first time in the church's history.

A change in the confession of faith in regard to marriage gave tacit approval to supervised practice of eugenics, the church holding:

"Children have the right to be well born."

Members of the general council include the following Pittsburghers: Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, past moderator, and Fred B. Shipp, who was elected for a two-year term.

ANGELO DeRENZO, 18 OR 30?

MAN CONFESSES THREE HOLDUPS

Angelo DeRenzo, arrested in the attempted holdup of the Warner Theater office the night of Memorial Day, admitted to three other robberies in Morals Court today, after being identified in connection with each of the cases.

De Renzo, who says he is 18, but who police believe is about 30, was identified as the man who held up the Alberta drug store, February 15, obtaining $600, part of it funds of the sub-postal station there; as the robber who held up and bound S. J. Meminger, manager of the Ritz Theater, 219 Fifth avenue, May 21, escaping with $250, and as the one who robbed an attendant of an Atlantic gasoline station, Telegraph square, May 6, obtaining $49.

Detectives said that Alex Barrie, Wilkinsburg High School teacher, and police who captured DeRenzo after a chase, would be entitled to the $2,000 reward by the government for arrest of any postoffice robber. DeRenzo was held over while police check his activities further.

ACTION DEMAND BROUGHT BY COL. CHURCH

Carnegie Institute Head Believes Most Members Favor Referendum Plan

Churches of the Pittsburgh Presbytery will consider a suggestion of a vote of its membership on its opinion of a prohibition referendum as a result of Col. Samuel Harden Church's declaration that he was informed, and believed, that at least 75 per cent of the church membership does not agree with the stand against a referendum taken by the Presbyterian General Assembly.

COL. CHURCH PROTESTS

After the general assembly, which just concluded its session in Denver, went on record as opposed to a referendum on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Col. Church, president of Carnegie Institute and a member of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, dispatched a telegram to Moderator Charles Kerr asking that the action be recinded on the ground that it was taken without the consent or approval of any congregation. The telegram reached Denver after the assembly had adjourned.

Discussion by local Presbyterians as a result of Col. Church's demands resulted in the suggestion being made to the Rev. Dr. P. W. Snyder, moderator of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, that a referendum be held in this presbytery.

CONSIDER POLL HERE

Dr. Snyder said the suggestion would be considered, but that he would consult with leaders among the local Presbyterian clergy before taking any stand in the matter.

Col. Church's telegram to the moderator of the General Assembly:

"The action of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in officially opposing a referendum on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment has been taken without the approval or consent of any congregation and I am informed and believe that it is against the convictions of at least 75 per cent of your members.

"Your course in denying the right of the people to pass upon their laws can have no other effect than to uphold the iniquitous system of prohibition which is the chief cause of crime, kidnaping, graft, drunkenness and public shame in this country, and it reveals the age-long danger of any ecclesiastical dictation in our laws, so wisely forbidden by the Constitution of the United States.

OTHER BANS SCORED

"Your program calling for the statutory suppression of tobacco, Sunday sports, Sunday radio programs, and many other habits and pastimes, which our people should be free to choose for themselves, proves that you are ignoring the mandate of Jesus that the seat of His kingdom is the human heart, to which you should make your appeal, and not to the legislatures or to Congress.

"No nation was ever made virtuous by an act of parliament.

"In adopting these oppressive resolutions you surely are forgetful of the declaration of President Washington that the government of the United States is not in any sense founded on the Christian religion.

"As a member of the Presbyterian Church I humbly implore you to revoke all that you have done on this subject, believing that your action misrepresents the wishes of the American people and is a menace to the welfare and happiness of our country."

COUNTY WARNED AGAINST TUBE PURCHASE

Wabash Deal Would Be 'Jumbo' of White Elephant Herd, Opponents Assert

The County Commissioners are confronted with a warning not to add the "Jumbo of white elephants" to the county's "already expensive" as a result of the third hearing before the board yesterday at which opponents of the Wabash bridge and tunnel were heard. Proponents of the proposed purchase were heard at two previous hearings of the Commissioners.

Declaring the project impracticable, J. H. O'Donnell, of several score protestants, told the commissioners:

"The county, through no fault of yours, is overloaded with an expensive herd of white elephants. Do not add the Jumbo of them all to this herd by taking over the useless Wabash bridge and tunnel."

OTHERS PROTEST

Several civic and commercial leaders, through the Municipal Planning Association, protested the purchase of the tunnel and bridge.

Summing up its arguments, the association said the project conflicts with the City Planning Commission plans for a logical development of traffic circulation that more uniform and beneficial results would follow "proper amplification of Duquesne Way and Water street," and that prior to determining any new radical highway to the south the problem should be studied in relation to developing other sparsely improved areas.

Newton F. Hopkins, the engineer who as a taxpayer started the grand jury investigation into the purchase of the Wabash tunnel and bridge by the former County Commission, attacked it as a "second hand solution for a first hand task."

VENTILATING PROBLEM

He declared it would cost the county approximately $200,000 in addition to the purchase price to install proper ventilating facilities in the tunnel and ended the whole thing as impracticable.

James D. White, representing the Allied Boards of Trade, said the project would permanently handicap the development of the Golden Triangle by cutting it in half with unsightly ramps.

W. A. McDonald, of Wilkinsburg, whose bond of $500 was declared forfeited when he failed to appear for hearing on a false pretense charge before Alderman Charles E. Gibson, Beaver avenue, last night, faced a similar charge today before Alderman Edward Haas, of West Liberty avenue.

Constables from Haas' office waited in Gibson's office for McDonald to arrest him on another charge of false pretense, the second to be filed against him before Alderman Haas.

Crilenden and Mrs. Hayes were arrested last night at 930 West North avenue, on complaint of her husband, who told police she and Crilenden were planning to elope. Crilenden and Mrs. Hayes were held on suspicious persons charges, and Hayes was charged with disorderly conduct.

Crilenden told police, they said, that he had been dishonorably discharged from the United States Navy and was wanted in California on 72 charges.

COUNTY DOCTOR BILL REJECTED

A bill for the services of Dr. Charles J. Ellis, presented to County Commissioners for payment by the directors of Juvenile Court, has been sent back with notification it will not be paid.

Dr. Ellis is also physician at the county jail at a salary of $4,000 a year. The bill presented was for $162.50 for services during the month of April at the Juvenile Detention Home.

Payment had already been refused once by the Commissioners in March on the ground that Ellis should not hold two county jobs. W. H. MacAfee, chairman of the board of managers of the Juvenile Detention Home, said plenty of time was taken in selecting Dr. Ellis' successor. He was dismissed May 24, and Dr. Theodore O. Elterich took his place.

ACCUSES MAN OF BITING EAR

When 115-pound Eck Hamilton, bell captain at the Pittsburgher Hotel, gave 200-pound Henry Fazen, Negro doorman, an order Fazen objected and a fight followed in which, according to Hamilton, Fazen bit off a corner of the bellhop's ear.

Hamilton, out of the hospital yesterday, appeared before Alderman Thomas Flanigan, before whom Fazen was arraigned, charged with mayhem. The bellman, looking across at the hulking figure of his antagonist, testified:

"He laid for me after work and jumped me when I left the hotel. Before I could even raise a finger, he had me down on the sidewalk and then chewed on my ear until he bit it off."

Hamilton, still bearing bandages, said he had ordered Fazen to answer the telephone and he refused.

Alderman Flanigan reserved decision.

Stolen Tire Dropped, Breaks Store Window

A stolen automobile tire, which according to police, had been carried by five boys in a chase of several blocks, rolled through a plate glass window in the Hoffman drug store, 1221 Fifth avenue, when dropped by the boys. Patrolman Edward Dann arrested Frank Lucatoria, 19, of 88 Washington street, Tony Conti, 22, of 1008 Vickroy street, Joseph LaPahlum, 19, of 1201 Epiphany street, James Schillo, 19, of 116 Washington street, and Dominic Grecco, 19, of 915 Bedford avenue.

The tire, police said, had been stolen from the auto of E. E. Coffey, 823 Sixth avenue, Homestead, parked at Fifth avenue and Magee street.

BUILDERS HERE SUPPORT JOB LOAN PLAN

$5,000,000,000 Bond Issue For Prosperity Backed By Trade Council Group

Government enterprises should be invoked to start production and bring the United States out of its present economic depression in the viewpoint of the Building Trades Council of Pittsburgh, which was on record today as seeking a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan to create employment on necessary public projects.

Action by the council followed a similar stand taken yesterday by the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County. More than a score of civic, trade and industrial groups have acted similarly within the past two weeks.

Memorializing Congress to take immediate action, the council's resolution declared:

"The situation appears to demand the same kind of treatment of finance and production as the country's war emergency."

President Julius Duty, announcing the stand taken by the council, said the memorial being sent each Senator from the state and Congressman from the district urged:

"Congress to take action in this matter by passing a $5,000,000,000 federal bond issue to finance construction of necessary public works and such other public undertakings as will provide employment on these enterprises and thus lead to the rectification of the serious economic crisis now confronting the American people."

Phone Coin Boxes Plugged in New Racket

If your nickel hasn't been returned on incompleted telephone calls in downtown drugstores in recent weeks, perhaps here's why.

Barnes was held for investigation. He said he came from a well known Philadelphia family.

Old Fashioned Bar No Treat to Dry

NEW YORK, June 2.—(INS.)—A visit to a Greenwich Village speakeasy today had left the Rev. James K. Shields, head of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, entirely disappointed.

It was just a plain, old fashioned bar, Dr. Shields declared, whereas he expected that all speakeasies in New York were munificently equipped with penthouse fittings, onyx bars, works of arts and French chefs.

BOXER MANAGER HELD IN RAID

Peter P. (Bunny) Buntach, manager of several Pittsburgh boxers, was named in an information filed today by county detectives as the proprietor of a gambling house at 447 Second street, Braddock.

Alderman Thomas M. Geary set bail at $1,000 for a hearing at 2 p. m., tomorrow.

County detectives said a large number of poker chips were seized, but claimed to have no other information as to how many others were arrested with Buntach in last night's raid.

The raid was made, county detectives said, after Mike Massen, of 108 Bedford avenue, had told them he had been cheated in a poker game at the Braddock place.

4TH DISTRICT DRIVE STARTED

CLEVELAND, June 2.—(AP.)—Business leaders of the Fourth Federal Reserve district were organized today to help everybody from the manufacturer to the home builder.

Fifteen of the district's outstanding industrialists were appointed on a committee to devise means of freeing credit and to study all methods that might help put men back to work.

The committee was named by E. R. Fancher, governor of the fourth district, after a conference yesterday in which Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, said this is no time for "apathy, indifference and a state of general helplessness."

L. B. Williams, director and deputy governor of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, was named chairman of the committee.

Other members include H. C. McEldowney, president of the Union Trust Company; A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; Howard Heinz, president of the H. J. Heinz Company, and E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, all of Pittsburgh.

PAMPHLET WAR ON AT PITT

The warfare on the University of Pittsburgh's campus, stirred by 300 students protesting the appearance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, U. S. Army chief of staff, as Commencement Day speaker June 8, today had simmered down to a battle of pamphlets.

Three mimeographed publications, "The Student Bulletin," published by the National Students' League, Pittsburgh Chapter, "The Gadfly," another radical pamphlet, and "Flit," the newest addition, sponsored by a conservative group, declaring that only a small portion of the student body is objecting to MacArthur's appearance and ridiculing the attacks made upon him by the other groups. All have found avid groups of readers.

PUNCH KEEPS RED PITCHER IN GAME

IT ISN T HARD to find the explanation of the fact that Red Lucas tops all the other moundsmen of the major leagues in complete games pitched, with 10 already to his credit. It is due not only to his being a good pitcher, but largely to the additional circumstance that he is also a crashing hitter, possibly the best clouting flinger in the business. The average pitcher is lifted for a pinch-hitter when his club is trailing near the close of a game. But Lucas is too good with the old flail to be taken out. He stays in and bats for himself. That's why he goes the route oftener than other hurlers. He led the National League in complete games last year and has a flying start toward doing it again.

Red Lucas

But even if the Cincinnati chucker succeeds in equaling or passing the total of 36 complete games that Grover Alexander piled up in 1915, he may still fall quite a distance short of the real records of modern times, for Jack Chesbro pitched 48 contests for the New York Americans in 1904, in which he went the full distance, and Joe McGinnity set the National League mark at 44 while a Giant in 1903.

EVER SINCE THE pitching of four straight shutouts by Allen Pipgras, Ruffing and Gomez, of the Yankees, to equal the American League record set by the Indians in 1903 and duplicated by the Red Sox in 1906, fans and critics have been debating as to how the 1932 feat compared with the earlier achievements.

Old-timers usually refuse to admit that the best modern performance are comparable to those of the past, but in this instance the majority are conceding that when the relative merits of the three shutout streaks are weighed the Yankee staff did the biggest and best job.

FIRST OF ALL, it is admitted that the ball of 1903 and 1906 was dead. Besides the stands did not encroach on the playing field to the same extent as today, and outfielders had plenty of room to go and get 'em.

Most important of all, there were no restrictions on the hurlers of 1903 or 1906. They could resort to all kinds of trick stuff in addition to the spitball. And nicked or wingy spheres were not hurriedly thrown out. The Yankee pitchers did not have any of those advantages.

THE AUTHORITY OF the umpires must be upheld and baseball must be kept free of rowdyism. The game would not long survive any laxity in either direction on the part of the powers. For these reasons the salty sentences handed out by President William Harridge, of the American League, to the four White Sox players accused of attacking Umpire George Moriarty are in line with the best interests of the game and as a deterrent they ought to have a lasting effect for the good of the sport.

Bob Quinn

PRESIDENT BOB QUINN of the Red Sox, no longer denies that the club is on the market. He admits it is for sale, but declares no tangible offers have been received. Numerous rumors have been circulated about pending deals for the club, but Quinn says nobody has come to the front with any money.

Bob is convinced that Boston has become his jinx. The same moves he made with success in other cities have had dire results in the Hub. So he's ready to hand over the plant to anybody who thinks he can do a better job. Though at present there is said to be no purchaser in sight, fans at large are more firmly than ever of the belief that Babe Ruth will become manager and part owner of the Red Sox, possibly at the end of this season. One of the California Guggenheims is reported to be backing him.

THE APPEARANCE OF Manager Al Mamaux on the mound for Newark this week, his first time out since he iron-manned his way through a doubleheader eight months ago, probably means that he will be in there frequently from now on in an effort to keep his club in the race.

Mamaux wanted to press the old soupbone into service last week in the Baltimore series, after his Bears had lost six out of seven games. He asked Fritz Maisel, Oriole manager, to let him go in as a relief pitcher, but Maisel refused, raising the technical objection that Mamaux had not handed in his name as eligible for service before the game started.

RECEIPT OF WORD that Mrs. W. P. Roth, owner of the Why Worry Farm, Redwood City, Cal., has entered her string of thoroughbreds is always cause for cheering on the part of those who are arranging a show. So there was no exception when Mrs. Roth's 12 kings and queens of the ring arrived for the Allegheny Country Club Horse Show, opening today and continuing tomorrow and Saturday, for the benefit of the unemployed of the county. Two of her outstanding animals are Sweetheart on Parade and Fata Morgana. Each has won, time after time, the former in the five-gaited saddle class and the latter in the harness class.

SWEETHEART ON PARADE is a beautifully formed gray mare, standing 15.2 hands. Her winnings last year included the local show, as well as those at South Shore, Chicago and Boston. Fata Morgana is a handsome chestnut, 15.1 hands. He also won honors at the local show and at South Shore and Boston last year. Both entrants are 7-year-olds.

Among Mrs. Roth's other entries appearing at Sewickley are Good Cheer, Spirit of St. Louis, Glory of Spring, Floradora and Firebird. Teamed with Fata Morgana is Seaton Belinda, a 6-year-old black mare. Mrs. Roth also is showing Rio Rita, Flying High and Meadowlark in the pony classes.

THE UNWILLINGNESS of Bob Kiesel to try for the American Olympic team, though fast enough to boast a mark of 9.5 seconds for 100 yards and to defeat the great Frank Wykoff recently, is not due to a dislike for track, as has been reported, but to the fact that Kiesel has a bad hip.

When he runs only one or two races the hip doesn't bother him. But he doubts that it would hold up under a series of heats such as he would have to run in the Olympics. The I. C. 4-A meet at Berkely July 1 and 2 will bring the answer. If Kiesel enters both the 100 and 220 there, he will have about six races to run in two days. These will demonstrate whether or not his hip will hang together.

Charley Paddock

THOUGH CHARLEY PADDOCK is reported as happy as a kid with his first stick of candy since the A. A. U. gave him back his amateur card, track men on the coast do not share his belief that he has a chance to make the American spring team for the Olympics for the fourth time in his career. They are of the opinion that the legs that won the 100-meter dash in the 1920 games at Antwerp are just as far gone as the legs that carried Jack Dempsey to the world heavyweight championship against Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919. Paddock would be setting a record if he came through, as no sprinter ever has made four Olympic teams. Jackson Scholz was the only one besides Paddock himself ever to do it three times.

DOCTOR BONERO AWARDED TWO RIBBONS

Doctor Bonero, entered by Miss Nancy Louise Patterson, figured prominently in the early judging at the annual Allegheny Country Club horse show, which opened a three-day exhibition for the benefit of the Allegheny County unemployed in the Sewickley ring this morning. The show will continue through tomorrow and Saturday.

The Patterson entry carried off two awards in the morning judging and finished second in another. He was adjudged the best in the breeding class for 3-year-olds and under, and in the model hunters for middleweights. Doctor Bonero was second in the hunter class for 4-year-olds and under, which was won by Blue Moon, entered by T. McKee Graham.

Chemkee, also entered by T. McKee Graham, carried off the prize for model hunters in the heavyweight class.

The winners in the morning judging follow:

HELEN JACOBS DEFEATED

AUTEUIL, France, June 2.—(AP.)—Helen Jacobs, second ranking woman player of the United States, was eliminated from the French tennis championships today in the quarter-final round by Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 4-6, 4-6.

The defeat of Miss Jacobs left only Mrs. Helen Wills Moody in women's singles and Gregory Mangin in men's singles to carry the American standard in the championships.

Mrs. Moody, seeking her fourth French title, advanced to the final round with a 6-3, 10-8 victory over the German girl, Hilda Krahwinkel, in the semi-finals.

Fraulein Krahwinkel extended Mrs. Moody to the utmost in the second set, but the greater experience and stroke ability of the American champion finally prevailed.

Fred Perry, English Davis Cup ace, defeated Franz Mateika, of Austria, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4, and George De Stefani, of the Italian Davis Cup team, won from Baron Von Kehrling, of Hungary, 6-4, 9-7, 6-4, in fourth round matches.

Negroes Are Barred From Olympic Test

BALTIMORE, June 2.—(INS.)—Four Negro athletes have been barred from competition in the Olympic track and field trials of the South Atlantic Association, to be held Saturday, through a standing rule of Johns Hopkins University. Two of the students are from Morgan College, Baltimore, and two from St. Paul's School, Lawrenceville, Va.

William L. Hartung, chairman of the games committee, said after he had been informed by Henry Iddins, university auditor, of a standing rule that Negroes could not use the athletic field:

"They want to compete, they have every opportunity to enter meets elsewhere."

MILWAUKEE, June 2.—(AP.)—Dave Maier, Milwaukee, who went to the Boats in the recent light heavyweight tournament at Chicago, quit in the sixth round of scheduled 10-round fight with Billy Jones, Philadelphia Negro, here last night and was counted out in his corner by the referee. Maier claims the Negro's opponent of his misdeeds had severely hurt his stomach.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE BRIDGE OF THE GODS—The Mihashi, or Sacred Red Bridge, spanning the frothing mountain stream of Dayi Gawa, near Nikko, is one of the most picturesque objects in Japan. It is reserved for the exclusive use of the gods of Japan and the Tenno (Son of Heaven), the official title of the Japanese sovereign. No mortal may cross on it. Its vivid red coloring is traced to the fact that in former days human blood was used to dye it. The blood donors would slash themselves with long knives to obtain the fluid for the purpose. Mere mortals use another bridge, made of plain granite, to cross the stream nearby.

TOMORROW: THE DEATH'S HEAD PEARL

SEALS DISCUSS HORSE SHOW

Believe it or not, there is no such thing as a "thoroughbred" horse in a horse show.

If the animal is anything, it is a pure-bred, but not a thoroughbred. The term "thoroughbred" is confined exclusively to running race horses, and does not extend to harness, saddle or show horses.

This and many other facts about horse shows were brought out by R. T. M. McCready, of Edgeworth, veteran breeder and exhibitor of show horses, during an interview with Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, during the weekly period of the Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over Station WCAE last night.

McCready spoke in connection with the welfare fund benefit horse show, which opened at the Allegheny Country Club today and continues through tomorrow and Saturday. Among other things, he described the various gaits of the horses and told in interesting fashion how to appreciate the fine points of the exhibitions.

On the program with McCready was Dr. W. D. McClelland, former state boxing commissioner, completing a crossfire carried over from the week before and dealing with football, boxing and wrestling. Music was furnished by Miss Marian Salmon at the piano. Tom Birks led the singing of the theme song and Julius Levin directed the barking of the Seals, with Bill Sutherland in the role of announcer.

Johnny Weissmuller, former swimming champion, now motion picture star, will be featured on next week's Seals' bill, along with Miss Lenora Kight, fair swimming star of the Homestead Library Swimming Club, who will compete in the Olympic trials in New York soon. Weissmuller will be making a personal appearance at Loew's Penn Theater beginning tomorrow and will splash with the Seals through the courtesy of the theater management.

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson

—Head Coach American Olympic Teams—

The time nears when the vanguard of foreign athletes should begin arriving on these shores and perhaps give us a line on their ability.

In most countries the choosing of a team is done in much the same way as here, through a series of eliminations. And when those are concluded the squad is nominated and will be shipped to these shores.

Owing to economic conditions, it is quite possible that some of the foreign groups will not reach the U. S. A. until July, so as to keep down maintenance expenses. But, no doubt, some of the brightest stars, who hardly will need to compete in the eliminations, will be here much earlier so as to become acclimated.

NO TEAM CHAMPION

Since 1924, there has been no Olympic champion. The old custom of awarding points and acclaiming as champion the nation that has the highest score has been abandoned.

This was a good plan because it now focuses attention upon the actual champion of each event, rather than upon how many points each nation scores. In the past, we usually had a complete squad and thus could, by preponderance of entries, gain the most points.

This year, it will be different—and that is good. Special glamour will attach itself to the event winner. The country which sends only a small squad, but has several stars within that squad, will gain great honors if it can win a few of the events.

It seems now that we will have a great track and field team—perhaps the greatest of all time. But that does not mean that we will gain a majority of victories. For we seem destined to face far sterner opposition than ever before.

REAL COMPETITION

Each country that will compete in the 1932 Olympics seems better fortified than ever before. Each has several men who have undeniable greatness. Many may spring a surprise by showing us a world champion who just now is rated merely as "another one of the foreign invaders."

The Olympics of 1932, once regarded as merely a U. S. A. national competition, may furnish some startling upsets. It is only necessary to remember what happened in 1928 to think of the possibilities of 1932. It that year we thought we had the greatest track team in the world.

But we were beaten in the 100 meters, the 200 meters, the 800 meters, the 1,500 meters and the hurdles. With the exception of the relays, we won exactly one running event—the 400 meters.

COACH SCORES YALE POLICY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 2.—(AP.)—A plea that Yale varsity and junior varsity football be allowed to continue "in their present wholesome state" was made today by Head Coach Mal Stevens.

Discussing the new athletic program recently announced for the university, Stevens in an article in the Yale Daily News criticized the plan to limit the football schedule to five games, confine practice to the regular season and to abolish the junior varsity squad. He also defended the system of paid coaches.

Shortening of the practice period, he said, may eliminate all opponents who do not adopt a similar regulation.

"In addition, Yale players might incur numerous and severe injuries, since medical authorities and experienced trainers agree that football injuries and football accidents tend to occur in inverse proportion to the time spent teaching football 'skills.'

"If a change is made, Yale should compete with only those teams whose training periods is of the same length. This may mean the elimination of intercollegiate football at Yale."

Coach Stevens recommended that "no limitation be made in the number of intercollegiate contests until the boys who play the game express such a desire," and that Yale reaffirm her belief in non-scouting but continue to scout those of her opponents with whom non-scouting agreements cannot be arranged.

Detroit Swimmer Sets Tank Mark

DETROIT, June 2.—(AP.)—Swimming against time at the Women's City Club tank yesterday, James Gilhula, Detroit Olympic candidate, bettered the world record for 300 meters when he negotiated the distance in 3:31.6.

Gilhula clipped 1.9 seconds off the record of 3:33.5, set by Arne Borg, of Sweden, in 1926.

KREMER MAY FACE BRUINS ON SLAB

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Third place was at stake for the Pirates today as they prepared to repel the invasion of the league-leading Chicago Cubs, who will challenge the Buccos this afternoon in the first battle of a three-game series.

Manager Gibson was a bit in doubt as to his starting pitcher, although his choice apparently simmers down to Remy Kremer and Glenn Spencer. Gibby has a flock of sharpshooters ready, but he would like to get the big Frenchman into action. If Remy feels strong at game time he may get the assignment.

The Bruins will not be sorry if Spencer remains in the dugout, for it was Glenn who tamed the Bears in the second clash of last Sunday's doubleheader in Chicago.

Spencer not only made the Bears jump through, he blanked them to send his string of consecutive shutout innings to 20. Bob Smith is due to flip the ball for the lads from Lake Michigan's shores.

CUBS HOLD LEAD

The Cubs dropped one of those tough games to the Cardinals yesterday, but they still held tenaciously to their slight hold on the honor position. The gripping race in the National League thus was narrowed in an intensive manner, the future holding big things for the fans in the matter of expectancy.

Roger Hornsby's fine flinging staff is the thing that stands between the invaders and a probable berth in the second division. Kiki Cuyler is still out of action with a broken foot, but Woodie English's fractured finger has mended sufficiently to allow him to play. Woodie, however, is holding down the hot corner, Bill Jurges' work at short being very satisfactory.

PIE ON MEND

Speaking of third base, it is altogether likely that Capt. Pie Traynor will swing into action before the present series is completed. There was a chance that Pie would return to the post today, but if his shoulder bothers him he probably will watch Tommy Thevenow again. And Thevenow, by the way, is playing the position like a star of the first rank. Tommy started a double play in Tuesday's scrap with the Reds that had championship stamps all over it.

The Pirates and Reds were tied for the third notch of the league's standing before the clubs moved into action today. The gap between the Pirates and Reds and the top is not a big one, while the occupants of the second division are engaged in a merry fight for favored berths. A little spurt on the part of any one of these clubs might catapult it into the first division.

Charley Wood, young left-hander, who only recently returned to the Pirates after having had his appendix removed while the team was in training in Paso Robles, was released yesterday to Tulsa, of the Western League. He'll be back with the Pirates by autumn.

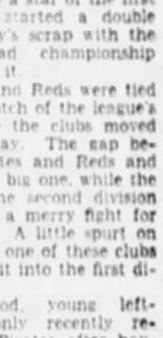
Buzz Arlett Hits Four Home Runs

READING, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Buzz Arlett, Baltimore outfielder, equaled the best known home-run hitting record yesterday when he clouted four home runs in one game against Reading.

The record books show only two players who ever performed the feat, Robert Lowe, of the Boston Nationals, did it in 1894, and Ed Delahanty, of the Philadelphia Nationals, in 1896.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

BOSTON, June 2.—Here's another example of government waste. The Republicans and Democrats of Congress play a ball game at our Washington park next Saturday and they expect ME to be the funny guy!



Nick Altrock

Well, I am willing to clown for those bozos, but if my best stuff is half as comical as a Congressman winding up without making a speech or losing a decision without blaming the international bankers, Uncle Nick is wrong again.

I'm just waiting to see Speaker Garner take a cut at an outcurve with his gavel or Huey Long get in the batter's box without facing the grandstand or Borah to agree with an umpire even if he calls him safe.

MISS WILSON RETAINS BRITISH GOLF TITLE

ENID RECORDS DECISIVE WIN IN FINAL

SAUNTON, England, June 2.—(AP.)—Enid Wilson today retained her British women's golf championship, defeating Miss Clem Purvis-Russell - Montgomery, Scottish player, 7 and 6, in the 36-hole final.

Enid Wilson

Miss Wilson yesterday defeated Mrs. Leona Cheney, in a semi-final round match.

Miss Montgomery held the champion in check through the morning round, playing her shot for shot on the second nine to halve every hole and end the first 18 only 1 down, but Miss Wilson made a runaway of it in the afternoon.

She won the first three holes of the last 18 and finished the 27 7 up and 9 to play, ending the match three holes farther on.

On her way to her second title, Miss Wilson defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare in the second round, 3-2.

Miss Montgomery was outplayed in every department of the game on the afternoon round. The champion's putting touch returned after some lapses in the morning and her figure of one over 4's for the last 12 holes was enough to best some of the best men golfers in the game. The cards:

BUCS ANNOUNCE BOYS' PLANS

Pirate officials today were perfecting their plans for tomorrow's Knothole Gang reception, the event to be the first of its kind in the history of the baseball organization. Children from all parts of the county are expected to take part in the big festivities, the Chicago Cubs and the Pirates to stage the honors of the diamond. The game will be started at 3:30.

In order to facilitate the handling of the youngsters, Vice President Samuel E. Watters, of the Pittsburgh club, today gave out the following instructions:

"Unaccompanied boys, 12 years or under, will enter at the Schenley Park entrance at the extreme centerfield end of the grandstand. Boys 12 years or under, accompanied by a parent or an adult, will be admitted at the front gate."

'Goat' of Historic Grid Fray Suicide

SALEM, Ore., June 2.—(AP.)—Denny Clark, the man who as a youth shouldered the sole responsibility for the historic 2-to-0 defeat of the Michigan football team by Chicago in 1905, is dead. He shot himself in his hotel room here yesterday.

Registered under his full name of William Dennison Clark, he was identified by Don Greene, of Portland, a brother-in-law, and by letters and photographs found in his room. He was 47 years old.

Pictured in sports pages for years as "the goat" of the famous Michigan-Chicago game, Clark's error came in attempting to make a safety in order to bring the ball into play farther down the field. He was thrown for a touchdown, causing Michigan to lose its first game in several seasons.

Vic Pickard, Former Pitt Star, to Wed

A romance of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech campuses will culminate tonight in the marriage of Vic Pickard, former Pitt and Canadian Olympic Games pole vaulter, and Miss Elizabeth Hershberger in the home of the bride, 88 North Emily street, Crafton, with the Rev. Harry Price, of the Crafton M. E. Church, officiating. The ceremony is set for 8:30 o'clock. The bridal couple will leave for the East and then go to Canada for their honeymoon and will return to make their home in Crafton.

Miss Hershberger attended Carnegie Tech while Pickard, now employed here, was starring for Pitt. He came here from Hamilton, Ont., and competed for Canada in the Olympic Games.

Bruce Caldwell Signed by Dodgers

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the signing of Bruce Caldwell, former Yale football star and leading batsman of the Eastern League last year.

Caldwell, who batted .360 for New Haven last year and drove out 38 home runs, has been trying out with the Dodgers for several days. He went in as a pinch hitter against the Boston Braves Sunday and singled home the winning run.

The Dodgers bought an option on his services last fall, but did not exercise it.

Caldwell is a first baseman.

AID PROMISED AKRON

AKRON, O., June 2.—(AP.)—Financial support was promised the Akron Central League baseball club today. Officials of the Chamber of Commerce assured John J. McCloskey, manager of the Tyrites, that the team would be kept in the league and a meeting of business men was called for today to discuss the situation resulting from poor attendance.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, back on the upgrade, tries to stretch his new winning streak tonight when he meets Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland, former welterweight champion of the world, in the 10-round main bout of the only show of the week in the district, as compared with three outdoor billings next week. The Hickey Park arena, Millvale, will be the scene of combat.

Buck McTiernan

Freeman already holds a referee's decision over McTiernan scored in May of last year at the Meyers Bowl. Many of the fans thought McTiernan really was the winner that night. He scored the only knockdown and won a majority of the rounds. Freeman has been winning consistently since that pairing and shapes up as a formidable middleweight.

Three six-round bouts and a four-rounder make up the preliminary card.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, boxes Red Artis, of Philadelphia, in the semi-final; Bearcat Jones and Jack Watson, stablemate of Freeman, are in the second event, and Chink Rosanna, of Uniontown, turns professional against Johnny Hazel in the first six-rounder. Bobby Rowe and Jimmy White are in the abbreviated tussle. The show gets under way at 8:45.

Between Rounds

Charley Baxter's bout with Cecil Payne scheduled at Louisville next Monday night has been postponed because of an ankle injury suffered by Payne.

The Meyers Bowl will have 4,000 seats available at $1.65 for the Midget Wrigley-Tony Martino show next Monday night.

Pastic Walker and Davy Grove are billed as the headliners at Hickey Park one week from tonight.

Joey Thomas, local amateur featherweight, is ready to turn professional.

Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, who stopped Ray Trimble in his most recent bout here, will meet Henry Goldberg, of New York, in the second 10-round bout at Greenlee Field next Wednesday night. Ray Miller and Johnny Datto are in the semi-final, and Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, and Larry Johnson, box the windup. The opener has not yet been announced. Johnson's match here will be his last before he sails on June 25 from New York with Roy Williams for a series of bouts in South America.

Jack Perry writes that he and Guy Sabrno were injured in the wreck of their automobile near Albuquerque, N. M., en route back home to Los Angeles. Perry suffering a cut hand and three broken ribs and Sabrno escaping with a bad shaking up. Jack now is doing bits in the movies again, while Sabrno is resting up prior to engaging in a few bouts on the Coast, after which he will come back here to meet our best middleweights.

Freddie Jenkins, 134-pounder, of New Salem, Pa., is anxious to box in Pittsburgh.

Tony Herrera has outgrown the light weight class and will be making his debut as a welterweight when he boxes Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in the semi-final on the Bowl card Monday night.

Failing to make much progress in pushing the sale of tickets for its Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey heavyweight championship battle in its Long Island City arena, on June 21, the New York Madison Square Garden interests have decided to cut in the Milk Fund to help along the promotion, and a decision also has been reached to cut the prices of the pasteboards. Ten thousand tickets remain at the top price of $25, with 5,000 others reduced to $15. Ten thousand other seats have been reduced from $3.45 to $2.30.

Jimmy Belmont boxes Marty McHale in the 10-round main bout of a show for Jim McGirr at Steubenville, O., tomorrow night.

WILLIAMS IN TOP FORM

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 2.—(AP.)—Percy Williams, double sprint winner for Canada in the 1928 Olympics and who is attempting a comeback for this year's Canadian team, returned to his home today apparently in excellent condition. Williams took the track against Reg. Brady, Canada's second leading sprinter, who has been doing the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat, and stepped away from him easily. The time was not taken.

Television Brings Epsom Derby to London Theater

LONDON, June 2.—(INS.)—Critics were unanimous today in praise of the unprecedented television experiment held in a theater here yesterday, when 4,000 spectators saw a televised version of the English Derby flashed upon a screen.

The historic race, run at Epsom Downs, was flashed simultaneously on a screen nine by seven feet. Those in the audience clearly could see the horses racing around the track and were able to distinguished some of the jockeys by their stripes.

J. L. Baird, television inventor, was greeted by a salvo of cheers when he walked upon the stage after completion of the show. He described the test as a "reasonably successful experiment."

TECH RENAMES COULTER

By JESS CARVER

Always more or less the athletic fashion at Carnegie Tech, another repeater-captain bobs into the picture in Tommy Coulter. Tech's crack cinder star, who has been elected to lead the Plaid varsity squad again next season after completing a very brilliant campaign for 1932.

Coulter, who'll represent the Skibos in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet in California in July, is a candidate for the Canadian Olympic team, specializes in the 400-meter high hurdles and runs the 100, 220, 440, 120-yard highs and 220-yard lows in dual meets for Guy Halferty. When he can find the time, he also takes a hand, or rather, a foot, at broad jumping.

Rufus Hartig, sophomore tennis star, will captain the varsity racquet squad next year, having been duly elected by his teammates. The Techs play minus a captain this season, but have chosen Irwin Jalonack, of Los Angeles, as honorary captain.

In becoming a repeater as leader, Coulter moves into the same class with Johnny Dreshar, George Nease, Jess Price and other Carnegie stars who have been twice honored by being chosen team captain.

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—John Hope Doeg, former national single tennis champion, is willing to represent the United States on the Davis Cup team against the Brazilian team at Forest Hills if the committee so desires.

The Davis Cup committee has announced that Doeg will replace Ellsworth Vines, the national champion. Vines will sail Saturday for England to compete in the Wimbledon championships.

Doeg and Frank Shields probably will play the singles against the South Americans, with Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn teaming in the doubles. The tie starts June 9.

OAKMONT STAR SETS RECORD

By TOM BIRKS

Oakmont's victory over Edgewood in Section I of the women's team competition yesterday was marked by a brilliant round of golf on the part of Anjeannette Hunter, Oakmont Country Club star, who turned in a sparkling 78 to create a new woman's record for the course.

Miss Hunter

The previous record of 80 was held by Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, and was set in 1930. Miss Hunter literally burned up the course on the outward trek, four 5's, three 4's and two 3's dotting her card. She had a 38 going out, two over par.

The long back nine did not seem to hold any terrors, nothing over a 5 being chalked up on the scoreboard for the homeward journey.

Her card follows:

Out . . 3 4 3 5 4 5 5 4 5—38
In . . . . 5 5 5 4 3 4 4 5 5—40—78

OAKMONT VICTOR

Oakmont's 6-to-1 victory over Edgewood leaves it just one point behind Allegheny in the standing. The Field Club team played well to beat Fox Chapel, 7 to 1, while Edgewood just nosed out Stanton Heights, 4 to 3. It was the brilliant playing of Mrs. L. G. Riley and Mrs. F. M. Sloan, who garnered three points from Mrs. F. E. Campbell and Mrs. M. K. Garber, that gave Edgewood the match.

Westmoreland women made their position at the head of Section II more solid by beating Shannopin, 8 to 0. Longue Vue rosed out the Country Club representatives on their own layout, 4 to 3, and Youghiogheny swamped St. Clair, 6 to 3. The standings of the teams follow:

SECTION I

	Won	Lost	Pts.
Allegheny	3	0	18
Oakmont	2	1	15
Field Club	2	1	13
Fox Chapel	1	1	12

KISKI WINS TITLE

Kiski repeated its victory of last year in the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Golf Conference by defeating Shady Side Academy in the sectional playoff, 14 to 4, at Oakmont yesterday.

The Saltsburg boys need only to win the C. L. Lott trophy one more time to gain permanent possession.

The best medal score of the day was flashed by Reynolds, No. 2 man for Kiski. His 76, four strokes over par, was a gem. He was followed closely by Jim Marks, Jr., who retained his reputation of being the leading scorer in the Conference by shooting a 79. Oppenheimer won the only match for Shady Side, defeating Clark, 9 and 8.

The scores:

Kiski	11	Shady Side	4
Marks	3	Borcup	0
Reynolds	3	Goldsbury	0
Meyer	2½	Curry	0
Hamilton	2½	Bauer	0
Owens	2½	McLaughlin	0

The next tournament of the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Association will be held Tuesday at St. Clair. E. C. Gammon won the third tournament.

At Zanesville, O., yesterday, Mrs. Florence Baker suffered bruises when she was struck in the right eye by a ball on the Zanesville Golf Club course.

GRAYS BATTLE BALTIMORE FOR LEAD

One of the outstanding battles of the sandlot season will be staged this evening when the Homestead Aces, undefeated leaders of the West Penn League, clash with the Soho McKnights in a league contest on the latters' field.

The first week of the season found the Aces stopping the Soho aggregation at Homestead and Manager Pat Griffin has been eager to avenge that setback. Brosky, crack right hand twirler, is primed to go to the mound for the Griffin aggregation. It is expected that Manager Jack Fertig will depend upon Miller to hurl for the Aces. If the Aces are successful in winning this evening, they should have little trouble annexing the first half title.

PLAYER LIST CLOSED

The City League closed its first half player lists last night, and the teams will have to battle from now on with their present lineups. Just as the pre-season dope indicated, there is going to be a terrific battle between Books and Dormont for the first half title.

This evening Reliance travels to Olympia Park to meet Books, the Frank Ferris club clashes with the North Siders at the Salt Works grounds, and Curley Semler and Dave Wickline take the Stowe team to Bloomfield to meet J. L. Thomas.

LEAD AT STAKE

First place in the East-West League will depend upon the outcome of the four-game series between the Homestead Grays and the Baltimore Black Sox, which opens at Greenlee Field this evening. The teams will stage the second game at Cycler Park, McKeesport, tomorrow evening, and the final games will be offered at the Bedford avenue inclosure on Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Black Sox were riding along in first place until they encountered the Grays last week, dropping down to second when they lost an 11-inning struggle.

Dormont was handed a surprise last evening as Homewood scored a 2-to-1 victory. The Frank Ferris nine nosed out J. L. Thomas 4 to 3, in the only other City League fray scheduled.

The Homestead Aces set themselves for their tussle this evening with the McKnights by walloping the St. Clair Frogs, 17 to 1. In the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, the McGraths defeated the West End entry, 8 to 7, and in the County League, the Scott Morgans won over Pitcairn, 2 to 1.

MACKS PRESS LEADERS IN AMERICAN

Associated Press

Knocking off the leading Yankees twice yesterday, 8 to 7 in 16 innings and 7 to 6 in a regulation nine-rounder, the Athletics jumped into the big middle of the American League flag fight and wrapped the first division up tighter than a new drum.

Yesterday's twin triumph, scored after 5 hours and 45 minutes of battling, was a thriller all the way. Max Bishop won the opener with a home run in the last of the sixteenth. Foxx supplied the winning runs in the nightcap with a circuit blow in the seventh. Babe Ruth clouted the 2,500th base hits of his career in the first game.

Washington raced into second place by virtue of a hard-won 2-to-1 verdict over Boston, while Detroit was being rained out at St. Louis.

The Chicago Cubs, facing a long road trip, saw their lead over the idle Boston Braves reduced to two games in the National League when they were whitewashed by Dizzy Dean, of the Cardinals, 1 to 0.

The Phillies beat the Giants, 4 to 2, and sent McGraw's troupe into last place.

Railroad Credit Body To Have Ample Funds For July 1 Interest

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

AMPLE FUNDS will be on hand to take care of emergency requirements for the July 1 interest payments of this country's railroads. This was made known today by E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit Corporation, in his monthly report to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Railroad Credit Corporation is the organization formed to receive and distribute the proceeds of the freight rate surcharges granted the carriers to help them through their present difficulties. It will be remembered that the Interstate Commerce Commission allowed rate increases on the condition that the proceeds be pooled for the benefit of carriers in danger of defaulting on their funded debt. Under the plan, the roads helped will be expected to eventually pay back the advances so that the money can be redistributed to the carriers which originally collected it.

* * *

Loans Reach Total Sum of $21,944,217

LOANS AUTHORIZED by the Railroad Credit Corporation reached a total of $21,944,217 on June 1 according to the report. Of that amount $7,221,574 represents loans actually made and leaves a balance of $14,722,642 in loans which have been authorized but not actually made.

Buckland declared that this liability will probably be reduced by $6,069,687 within a short time.

The March reports of surcharges collected, which accrued to the corporation in May, amounted to about $6,000,000. Requirements to meet interest payments of railroads on June 1 were small. This made it possible for the corporation to build up a cash surplus available for loans in anticipation of July 1 needs.

* * *

Revenues Were Below Original Estimates

THE INCREASED revenue collected by the railroads as surcharges has been considerably below the original estimates, according to Buckland. Assuming that net receipts are $5,250,000 during June, cash available for July 1 requirements would be about $11,700,000. He said:

"According to present indications, this amount, together with the co-operation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, should prove adequate."

This statement indicates that, for the time being at least, investors need have no fear of railroad receiverships.

16 YEARS STOMACH PAIN ENDS

"For 16 years I suffered with stomach trouble and after other things had failed I took ACIDINE and found that was my only relief," says Mrs. Mary Keller, Pittsburgh, Pa. "I have not been bothered with my stomach since, thanks to ACIDINE."

"The STRIKE-OUT is only 5% of pitching"

Robert W. Grove

"You must know and work on the weakness of every hitter," says the major league strike-out king of the Athletics. "Fanning a clouter in a pinch makes the crowd roar, but it is not everything in pitching. You must have good control and never lose poise or confidence. You must be at your best with men on bases. And you must keep on pitching until the end of the game. Pitching is no game for anybody unless he has power and nerve. It takes everything."

JUST to be quick starting is not enough. Just to be anti-knock is not enough. A gasoline to be great must have everything!

Gasoline may contain gum which you cannot see but will cost you money later.

No gasoline gives you your money's worth if you pay for it twice. Once at the pump and again in needless repair bills.

What you want is trouble-free, low-cost transportation. Power that gets you there without ruining an expensive engine. Power that can be counted on when you need it. Power that starts like a flash—and is still with you at the end of the run.

A gasoline to give you this must have everything.

Outside Audit To Safeguard Stockholders

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

A sensible step: The New York State Chamber of Commerce today will consider a recommendation by its own special committee that stockholders of all corporations, whose accounting is not regulated by federal or state authorities, be empowered to select independent certified public accountants to conduct regular audits.

Corporation executives and directors would do well not to oppose this plan. Many investors feel that they are not kept promptly and properly informed of what goes on. They feel that managements can, and often do, issue annual and other statements which do not reveal to outsiders all that is known by insiders.

In fact, distrust of corporation insiders has reached an unprecedented pitch. Dissatisfaction with managements is a natural concomitant of terrific shrinkage in security values. But dissatisfaction has become more widespread and more bitter this time than ever before. Revelations and rumors concerning stock market operations have not tended to alleviate suspicion that insiders have sometimes taken advantage of their special knowledge to fare better in the stock market than the outside holders have fared.

EVERYTHING POSSIBLE should be done to bring about better feeling between corporations and their stockholders. No nation, no corporation, can thrive on distrust. Capital must constantly be raised to enable this young country to develop its resources and to maintain world industrial leadership. Investors will respond more readily to new offerings when they know that auditors named by them, not by the management, will keep them fully informed.

The committee aptly observes:

"The appointment of auditors by the stockholders would afford the former a degree of independence from the directors or management of a corporation whose trusteeship is being reviewed and would enable the auditors to bring to light conditions or policies injurious to the stockholders which might not come to their attention if auditors were appointed by the management."

It is to be hoped that the members of the chamber will not oppose this timely proposal.

NO TYPE of investment has escaped the all-embracing deflation. Even the shares of America's leading banks have suffered terrifically — as much as a shrinkage of 75 to 95 per cent from the giddy boom prices. Look at the yields obtainable on leading New York bank stocks today:

Some day these quotations will look grotesque.

A CHEERFUL note: The Pennsylvania Railroad has just received its first mighty electric locomotive under its $100,000,000 electrification project, now to be actively pushed.

PRESIDENT JAMES R. BANCROFT, of the American Institute of Finance, aptly points out:

"Three years ago nothing was impossible to accomplish in this country, according to public theory. Today, based on the same type of psychology, nothing is too bad to predict in regard to the future. Its resources have been wasted, it is debt-ridden, its leadership has gone, its future is black. The present psychology is just as ridiculous, we believe, in every particular, as was the opposite psychology of three years ago."

WALL STREET, thanks to Washington, recovered for a brief hour yesterday from its previous day's fright. One fine day Wall street will stage a recovery that will not be evanescent.

BERLIN MARKET QUIETS DOWN

BERLIN, June 2.—(AP.)—Banks today put the brakes on the buying boom on the Boerse, and as a result the quotations were more subdued and were marked down on an average of 2 points.

An optimistic feeling prevailed, however, that the new government would be "friendly to capital," and moreover the Reichsbank's statement indicated that end of the month requirements would be easily met.

The close was inactive.

PARIS, June 2.—The Bourse displayed a heavy tone today, following the buoyancy on Tuesday. Bank shares were lower, but German issues were firm.

P. R. R. Carloadings Show Small Decline

During the week ended May 28 the Pennsylvania Railroad handled 80,991 cars, comparing with 81,029 in the week preceding and 113,576 a year ago. From January 1, cars handled totaled 1,933,431 against 2,546,543 in the like 1931 period.

RALLY CANCELS EARLY STOCK LOSSES

Wall Street Encouraged By Prospect of Accord On Fiscal Legislation

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP.)—After an early shower of selling orders, the clouds over the security markets suddenly lifted today and a rather active rally got under way, more than canceling losses of 1 to 2 points.

Utilities, rails and a number of industrials plunged to new lows in the first hour, but selling quickly wore itself out and a substantial rally appeared.

United States Steel, after duplicating its 1932 low at 25, was strongly supported and worked upward for a net gain of a point or more. American Telephone broke over 2 points to a new low but more than recovered that loss. Westinghouse Electric and other stocks identified with the utility industry likewise showed a better tone.

Market interest centered largely on fiscal legislation at Washington and Wall street appeared encouraged at the prospect of fairly early agreement. Leading bankers stress the view that a balanced budget, regardless of how the additional money is raised, is the pressing need of the moment.

Analysis of the proposed tax on electric power distribution, which would lay a 3 per cent charge on production, has caused some selling of utilities. This charge when translated into common share earnings would range from around 3 cents a share to as high as $9 on the common stocks of different utilities.

The Railroad Credit Corporation's statement that it had built up balances to take care of railroad interest requirements on July 1 was encouraging. The good effect of this statement was somewhat offset, however, by final first quarter earning reports.

The American dollar showed generally to better advantage in the foreign exchange market. Price changes were narrow, with sterling fractionally higher and some of the continental gold currencies a trifle lower.

The continued outflow of gold was accepted calmly in Wall street. It was reported in some quarters that the Senate's action toward balancing the budget had actually resulted in cancellation of some export orders, but this could not be confirmed. In any case, no immediate check to the movement had been expected.

U. S. TREASURY DEFICIT UP

WASHINGTON, June 2—(AP.)—The government completed 11 months of the 1932 fiscal year with a deficit of $2,684,950,446.

The Treasury's month-end statement, made public today, showed collections from all sources amounted to $1,770,269,398, while expenditures had mounted to $4,455,219,844.

Receipts for the 11 months last year were $2,684,438,387, while expenditures were $3,729,348,486.

The chief contributor to the decline was income tax collections which this year amounted to $895,978,640, compared with $1,564,628,881 a year ago.

Miscellaneous internal revenue dropped from $517,817,379 last year to $457,008,526. Customs duties slump totaled $310,579,420, against $349,356,553 last year.

General expenses of the government totaled $2,311,798,321 for the 11 months as compared with $2,066,620,082 last year.

The public debt increased $2,509,788,077 in the year from May 31, 1931, to last Tuesday. On that date it totaled $19,036,916,946, against $18,596,695,430 at the end of April.

Planting of Corn Finished in Iowa

DES MOINES, June 2—Corn planting is completed in the state except at a few scattered points. Cultivation has made good progress. Small grains also have had a good growth with pastures and hay improved by recent rains.

HOOVER AT BEST IN APPEAL TO CONGRESS

President in Fact Facing Mood Giving Tax Speech; Delay Adds to Confusion

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 2.—In his dramatic decision to emulate the custom of Woodrow Wilson and make a personal appearance before the legislative branch of the government, President Hoover, in his appeal to the Senate, appeared at his best.

Irrespective of personal differences on individual policies, Mr Hoover was in a fact-facing mood and it is to be hoped that his non-partisan appeal will emphasize to the 96 senators and the 435 representatives that in this great economic emergency it is criminal to tarry, unforgivable needlessly to delay, and tremendously reckless not to face economic realities.

Mr. Rukeyser

WORDS MEMORABLE

These words of the Chief Executive are memorable:

"The natural wealth of this country is unimpaired and the inherent abilities of our people to meet their problems are being restrained by failure of the government to act. Time is of the essence. Every day's delay makes new wounds and extends them. I come before you in sympathy with the difficulties which the problem presents and in a sincere spirt of helpfulness. I ask of you to accept such a basis of practical adjustment essential to the welfare of our people. In your hands at this moment is the answer to the question whether democracy has the capacity to act speedily enough to save itself in emergency. The nation urgently needs unity. It needs solidarity before the world in demonstrating that America has the courage to look its difficulties in the face and the capacity and resolution to meet them."

This message of Mr. Hoover's was pitched in a far finer key than his partisan attack a few days before on Speaker Garner's relief plan.

UNITY IMPERATIVE

Perhaps tardiness on the President's part in declaring himself on the manufacturers' sales tax, which alone offers a way out of the dilemma of insufficient revenue, added to the confusion of Congress. The President equivocated on Tuesday, saying he was opposed to the sales tax, but favored a manufacturers' excise tax as an emergency measure. If the sales tax is called by another name, it will still be a sales tax, though perhaps the faces of some politicians will be saved. The President's suggestion of accepting the principle as an emergency measure is timely. Then the country will have had experience with it, and can later decide whether to make the principle permanent. As a matter of fact, the compromise entails nothing except face saving, for Congress can always repeal its own legislation, and commits itself only for a given period of time.

The President was accurate in describing the deterioration in business, which has taken place in these six months while Congress has dawdled.

From a strictly economic standpoint, it would be helpful to carry the nonpartisan move to its logical conclusion, instead of going into routine political conventions and a routine election campaign. What a stimulus business and employment would receive if both parties agreed to adjourn politics during the emergency, and agree on an outstanding leader of consumate merit, who could be nominated by both parties!

Leland's Sister Brings News That She Has Killed Cruel Husband

CHAPTER II

Leland Forbes sat for a time, hour thinking over this situation. He finally decided that he could not tell Jeanette about Lola, or, at least, that it would not be fair to Lola to do so.

Fortunately Jeanette was going back to New York the next day. Leland wired to Gerald Adams, who was not only his lawyer but his closest chum. His message instructed Adams to telephone Lola that he was on his way to her.

He drove over to the hotel after dinner to see Jeanette and they took a ride down the beautiful Boone Trail.

"Business affairs have come up, dearest," he told her, "that make it necessary for me to go to New York so I will go back with you tomorrow."

"How lovely, Leland."

He felt like groaning because it wasn't lovely at all and the worst of it was he didn't know just what was ahead of him.

"At any rate, darling, we can select your ring while I am in New York."

"How wonderful it all is, Leland."

"More wonderful than words can describe, Jeanette."

"Think of a lifetime with you—"

She hugged his arm. Leland hoped that he was dissembling that she would not note his worry. He wondered if he ought to tell her. He had gone all over it in his mind before. Again he decided against it.

AN UNHAPPY MARRIAGE

Lola was his sister—and his twin. They were all that were left of the family. One might think there was nothing to hide in the fact that his sister sent for him, but there was much back of it. The Forbes were a proud family and Lola had made a grave mistake. She had married Vance Harlow—she had believed herself in love with him. Vance had turned out to be worse than a mere villain, he was the lowest of the low.

And Lola had an infant son.

Her love for her husband had died yet she was proud. She would rather die than have the world know what a fool she had been and especially did she want to hide the fact that her son had such a rotter for a father.

If Leland had told Jeanette all about this, Lola, he felt sure, would have been very much hurt. No, he couldn't tell her. He would rush up to the old Connecticut homestead, see that trouble Lola was in straighten things out and then go back and marry Jeanette.

They got into New York at noon. Leland took Jeanette to the Ritz for luncheon and then down to select the ring.

It was a beautiful ring. Jeanette was proud and delighted.

"I am going to be tied up with business affairs, dearest, until tomorrow or next day. I will get in touch with you as soon as I am free," he promised as he left Jeanette at the uptown apartment where she lived with a married sister.

"I'll count the hours," she whispered as he kissed her just a split second before the door to the apartment was opened.

HUSBAND IS CRUEL

Jeanette introduced Leland to her sister, Mrs. Kellogg, and announced her engagement. Leland remained for a short half-hour and then rushed away to catch a train for Berryfield, where his sister lived in the old Forbes homestead.

Forbes knew, at a glance, that his sister was in deeper trouble than ever. She explained that her husband was more brutal than ever in his demands that she secure the handling of her half of the Forbes fortune.

Leland, one of the executors for his sister's share, had always handled it for her.

"Vance insists that I make you turn it over to me," she explained.

"I'll do that, Lola, to make things happier for you. He will get it from you and dissipate it, but I have enough for you and baby."

Leland was proud of his infant nephew, named for him.

Lola shook her head despondently.

"You could handle it," Forbes suggested.

"No—he'd choke me into signing over to him."

"Choke you—literally?" Forbes became suspicious.

With a shamed face, Lola pushed down the neck of her dress and showed bruises and then she was frightened at the look in her brother's eyes.

"Vance did that?" he demanded.

"He—he had been drinking," she stammered.

"I'll take you and baby away."

"I can't—he may reform. It's awful for baby to grow up and learn that I had to leave his father."

"I'll fix him!"

"Leland—you frighten me—don't do anything—"

WARNS BROTHER-IN-LAW

She choked and paled with fear.

"I won't murder him," he promised.

Vance Harlow came in just then in his sporty plus fours and his face red from too long a stay at the "nineteenth hole." He greeted Forbes surlily. Forbes slipped the neck of Lola's dress down so that the bruises showed.

"What about this, Harlow?" he demanded.

Harlow turned to his wife.

"You squealer!" he cried.

Forbes sent Lola upstairs and went over to Vance, who struck at him. Forbes choked him and jammed him down in a chair. Then he slapped him across both sides of the face.

"Put one finger on Lola again and I'll kill you, you scum," Forbes said.

Vance, thoroughly yellow, promised faithfully to behave and go straight.

Forbes felt cheered at this and went back to New York after exacting a promise from Lola to let him know if there was any more trouble with her worthless husband. He was so upset that he did not think it an appropriate time to tell Lola that he was about to marry beautiful Jeanette Morse. He would let her know after a few more days.

Leland and Jeanette dined together the next evening. They planned for their future. The place in Wytheville would be repainted and refurnished. Meanwhile they would make a trip through the West Indies and into parts of South America on their honeymoon, combining business with pleasure, since the business of writing and illustrating books on bird life was also a pleasure.

Everything would be "fifty-fifty" with them, they agreed, and then they laughed at each other.

"We are gushing—and we do not like gushers," Jeanette declared.

For several days they worked, Leland in his little New York apartment and Jeanette at her sister's home. Only a few days more were needed to finish this volume. Then they would have a quiet wedding and depart on their glorious honeymoon.

One night out at dinner, John Maxin, the publisher, caught sight of Forbes and strode over to him. Then he recognized Jeanette.

"Hello, hello, hello!" he exclaimed, jovially. "I didn't know you people had ever met."

"Quite by accident, and we're just slightly acquainted," Forbes said, smiling knowingly at Jeanette.

"Well, well—you are a great team. You ought to know each other better and work together."

"We hope to," Forbes assured him and Jeanette flashed him an imploring glance as her cheeks crimsoned.

"I have to go back to my crowd—drop in at the office together," Maxin suggested.

"If we happen to meet each other," Forbes told him.

LOLA UNHAPPY

Maxin put on a playful expression and shook his finger at them.

"Take my advice, both of you. Get together—don't lose sight of each other!"

He walked back to his table.

"Sound advice, darling," Leland whispered.

"Won't he be surprised when he learns the truth!"

"If we had told him he would have made a great scene right here, Jeanette. I know him! Everybody about us would have known that we are engaged!"

"It was just as well, then."

Leland was in New York so little that he did not keep a car. He and Jeanette rode for an hour through the park and Leland ordered the driver not to get a ticket for speeding. He understood.

They made their plans for the quiet little marriage and Leland made notes of their itinerary.

"After that trip think how wonderful the quietude of the little Virginia place will be, dearest!"

"Heaven—or Eden at least," she agreed.

When Forbes got to his apartment that night he found a long letter from Lola. His sister was still miserably unhappy.

Part of the letter was:

"Vance's relatives have pounced down on me and make things more miserable than ever. He hasn't used force, but has been more abusive than ever. If it wasn't for Lily, my maid, I would be afraid, at times. She understands everything and I trust her never to talk outside. Vance's relatives have been living on the money he wheedled out of me and gave them. Now they are greedy and want him to get all of my property. I am afraid of them. Once when Vance was choking me I threatened to kill him. He has told them about it and they are throwing it up at me. What do you advise?"

FAVORS DIVORCE

This came as a most unhappy incident in the midst of all of Leland's happiness. He sat late thinking it over. At least he decided that within a few days he would run down and see Lola and then tell her about his coming marriage. It seemed to him that he might take her down to his Virginia home to live, away from Vance, while he was on his honeymoon.

Leland was fed up on it all. Once back from his honeymoon he would send Lola to Paris for a divorce. He wasn't going to permit her to be beaten and abused and shamed, even if her pride did cry out against the least publicity.

His little nephew would be better off reared away from such a man as his father.

Leland wanted to tell Jeanette all about it the next day, but he had given his word to Lola not to talk and he would have to see her first. When she understood that he was to marry Jeanette she would see that it would have to be explained to her.

Jeanette was in Maxin's office the next day when Leland came in with the last of his copy.

"I want to show you some marvelous photographs Miss Morse made," the old man said and he was so puzzled over their laughter that they explained all about it—all about being together when the photographs were taken, and all about their marriage plans, greatly to the delight of the old man who, although a wealthy bachelor, believed thoroughly in matrimony—for others.

Leland went around to see his friend and lawyer, Gerald Adams, and explained all about his plans and discussed Lola's sad affairs, for Adams had to know about this, since he handled the family finances for both Leland and Lola.

Adams said that Leland's plan about Lola was the best thing to do. He heartily congratulated Leland on his coming marriage and then Leland went home very happy.

LOLA KILLS HUSBAND

The next day he was going to buy a little circlet of diamonds—Jeanette's wedding ring.

He was busy in his apartment, packing certain papers and books and other things to be used in his bird life study while on his southern honeymoon.

Suddenly the buzzer at his apartment door sounded so long and persistently that he was startled. He went down through the foyer ready to scold whoever kept their finger on the button like that.

When he opened the door, Lola, her baby in her arms, her face as white as death, half stumbled in.

"Oh, Leland!" she cried.

"What is it, dear?" Did he strike you again? If he did I'll—"

"Oh, Lee—or God, Lee—I've killed him!"

She ran to the bedroom and put down the baby. Leland Forbes knew well enough that his sister was not hysterical but quite sane despite her agony of mind.

She told him about it—self-defense when he started to attack her.

"I threatened to kill him and he told his relatives. There were no witnesses. I can't have my son know that I killed his father, Lee. You must take me away, hide me! His relatives will see that I get the chair or life—save me, Lee!"

"Yes, Lola," Leland promised. He needed no more words to be convinced that she was right about the necessity of hiding where the long arm of the law could never reach her.

He hastily wrote some letters. One of them was to Jeanette, as follows:

"Dearest—I have to run away, for how long I cannot say, for what reason I cannot explain. Try and have faith in me and destroy this note.

"LELAND."

Synopsis

Leland Forbes, author of many books on bird life, accidentally meets Jeanette Morse in Virginia. He learns that she she is the J. Morse who has supplied all the photographs and drawings to illustrate his books. Forbes, heretofore always afraid of girls, is amazed to find himself in love. And, since Jeanette loves him, they become engaged and arrange for a speedy marriage. Then Forbes received a letter from a girl named Lola, begging him to come to her, and he knows that he must obey.

Now Go On

"Put one finger on Lola again and I'll kill you," Forbes said.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The Davis Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club elected a new set of officers at the meeting Saturday. J. A. McDonald, new manager of the Davis, used a new and novel idea in this election. He had the children, as they entered the theater, pick their candidates and then he had the candidates parade across the stage and the new officers were "elected" from the amount of applause each received.

Walter Affl was chosen Grand Jester and he will serve in this capacity until the end of June. Along with Walter the youngsters selected the following to act as members of the Board of Governors: Betty Daugherty, Greta Whaby, Mary Affl, Idella Davis, Elmer Kline and Myer Jeinberg.

NEW MEMBERS

Joe Mowod, the retiring grand jester, and Walter Affl, newly elected head of the Davis Chapter, welcomed the following new members into the club before the meeting was called to order: James Jackson, Ray Ruane, Thomas Lynch, Stanley Konefae, Anthony Hober, Charles Delaney, Joseph Keeny, Lawrence Nannim, Dorminic Ianoti, Jimmy Walney, Roger Otto, William White, Sylvester Rapalski, Gerard Otto.

At the regular meetings last Saturday the managers of each theater appointed a boy or girl to act as the "official reporter." It will be the duty of the "official reporter" to give the manager of the theater where his or her chapter meets the "news" of activities among other members.

The boy or girl selected for this work will find that it is not only a fascinating pastime, but also will be very interesting work. One of the most exciting angles of newspaper life is the reporter who is always out "digging" up the news which the large metropolitan newspapers, such as the Sun-Telegraph, print every day. Not only will the youngster appointed to this position be fascinated and interested in the work, but the training they will receive will prove a great advantage to them in later years.

CHAPTER REPORTERS

Here's a partial list of "Official Reporters" together with their addresses: Arsenal Chapter, Greshman McGuire, 324 Fisk street; Belmar Chapter, Samuel Vicator, 7426 Susquehanna street; Cameraphone Chapter, Edward Riffle, 5955 Alder street; Enright Chapter, Ann Helfgott, 103 Morewood avenue; Davis Chapter, Francis Nessler, 1214 Bedford avenue; Kenyon Chapter, Julius Pace, 1100 Hemlock street; Manor Chapter, Evelyn Parker, 1306 Murray avenue, Plaza Chapter, Olive Wentner, 4777 Liberty avenue; Rowland Chapter, Dorothy Anderson, 319 Trenton avenue.

If you have any interesting "news" about your club or fellow club members get in touch with the reporter for your chapter and he will send it to the manager.

DIZZINESS, HEART PALPITATIONS WARN OF HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

French Doctor's Formula Attacks Basic Causes—Provides Prompt Relief

If you suffer from dizziness, heart palpitations, headaches, unnaturally cold hands and feet, pains in the region of the heart, back and arms, inability to concentrate the mind—heed Nature's warning of High Blood Pressure. But don't spend the rest of your life in constant fear of a stroke of apoplexy.

Take Sensible Precautions

Avoid too much meat, alcohol, coffee, tea, over-strenuous exercise and excitement—eat more fruit, vegetables and salads. And to correct this dangerous disorder drink three cups a day of tea made from Dr. Morel's No. 8 Botanic Compound.

Possible To Reduce Blood Pressure

High Blood Pressure sufferers who have spent time, money and hope on unscientific pills, powders, salts and other treatments without relief will welcome the highly successful Dr. Morel's No. 8 Botanic Compound. For years this formula was the jealously guarded secret of Dr. Morel, a widely known practicing physician of Lyons, France. Now you can take this same successful treatment right in your own home.

A Scientific Compound

In preparing his famous No. 8 Botanic Compound, Dr. Morel studied each of the many disorders of the human body which cause High Blood Pressure. Scientifically, exactly, he blended a compound of botanic and marine herbs to attack each of these causes. In this way, rather than through some drastic, harmful, hit-or-miss method, Dr. Morel's Compound gently assists the organs of the body to bring blood pressure back to normal. Get Dr. Morel's No. 8 Compound today (in the green box)—costing only 7c a day to take. Sold by Mayflower Drug Co. and other well-stocked drug stores.

A Cinema Director Has a Right to Use His Brain

"A cinema director has a right to use his brain."—Josef (nee Joe) von Sternberg.

Directors have a right to use their brains
Outside of business hours, you must agree;
Then they can luxuriate in mental strains
And stresses—utilizing all their brains
For cultural or any other gains.
But when they're working, such things should not be.
Directors have no right to use their brains.
Inside of business hours. They must agree!

Everybody Sings "Happy Days Are Here Again!"

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby has signed an agreement with a prominent drug store to sit in the window for eight days, blindfolded and hand-cuffed, while he thinks up a way to put the country back on its feet.

"I wouldn't dare accept this challenge," said Frisby, in a written message to shoppers, while demonstrating fountain pens, "if I had nothing up my sleeve. In fact, I have my plan pretty well jelled right this minute. My idea — like all great ideas—is so simple that people may not understand it. In a word, without being too suggestive, I will propose that every man, women and child in America go into voluntary bankruptcy, and then buy back their own assets at 50 cents on the dollar."

Today T. S. Nakano, Japanese boy poet, sings in despair—

They are waiting to us
Oh! What shall we do?

An Improved Attitude

The Duquesne Light Company Seems More Disposed To Treat Its Customers Fairly.

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company, estimates that the proposed federal tax of 3 per cent on gross receipts of electric light companies will cost his company about $850,000 a year.

Nevertheless, he says, the Duquesne Light Company is still willing to bargain with the city for a reduction in the rates for domestic consumers. The offer of a reduction amounting to about 10 cents a month for the average consumer has not been withdrawn; and inasmuch as Council has rejected the offer as inadequate and negotiations between the company and the city are continuing there is hope that a fairer rate may yet be obtained.

hillips shows a more reasonable attitude. He seems lisposed than formerly to concede that the public is en- to a reduction.

The thing for him to do if he really desires to convince the people that he is interested in giving them a square deal is to put into effect at once the rate reduction that he originally offered, or anything better that he is prepared to give.

While the negotiations with the city proceed the people with reduced incomes are having to pay the same high rates that prevailed when prosperity was at its peak. It is costing them many thousands of dollars a month in the aggregate, and the Duquesne Light Company could give no better proof of solicitude for the good-will of Pittsburgh and Pittsburghers than by voluntarily and unconditionally relieving the people of part of this burden now.

A saving of even 10 cents a month would be appreciated.

A small reduction, effective immediately, need not interfere with the negotiations for a more equitable rate.

Federal Aid Demanded

Senator Reed's Judgment Is Opposed by Scores of Pittsburgh Organizations.

So far as can be ascertained from his public utterances enator David A. Reed is still opposed to the plan for a ,000,000,000 federal bond issue to finance public works to lieve unemployment and restore prosperity.

Though he has not seen fit as yet to yield to the popular mand for the prosperity loan he cannot have failed to be im- ssed by the force of the demand.

Since he last voiced his objections to the proposal one local organization after another has indorsed it and memorialized Congress to put it into effect. One of the most recent thus to act is the Retail Grocers' Association of Allegheny County.

These organizations have not acted thoughtlessly. They have studied the plan and indorsed it with deliberation.

They have seen many other plans tried without effect. They have seen unemployment and destitution steadily increase. They have seen Senator Reed's statement that Pennsylvania does not need federal aid disproved in the misery of thousands of families whom the welfare societies, the city and county are unable to help because of lack of funds. It is their deliberate opinion that a federal prosperity loan offers the best hope of relief from an intolerable condition.

Senator Reed has nothing better to offer.

He can hardly be so confident of the infallibility of his own judgment as to set it up against that of the scores of organizations and multitude of individuals in Pittsburgh who call for the $5,000,000,000 public works program.

Retrenchment in Order

Deficit and the Needs of the Unemployed Call for a Cut In the State Government Expenses.

The conclusions reached at the conference of Gov. Pinchot and political and legislative leaders in Harrisburg yesterday are encouraging.

It was agreed that another special session of the Legislature is necessary to deal with the economic situation. Thoughtful people everywhere have recognized that additional legislative action was due, and it is gratifying to find Republican State Chairman Edward Martin and Gov. Pinchot, political antagonists, willing to get together on such a plan.

Another encouraging development of the conference was the strong manifestation of opinion that the best way in which to balance the state budget and provide relief for the unemployed is by reducing the commonwealth's expenses. It is hard to see how increase in state taxes can be completely avoided; but retrenchment, if carried far enough, will render unnecessary some of the new taxes that have been proposed.

The state began its new fiscal year yesterday with a deficit, which threatens to become larger notwithstanding the cuts in the appropriations to hospitals, universities, the mothers' assistance fund, and the like.

Retrenchment is in order. There are various functions of the state government which can be temporarily suspended. Some of the Harrisburg conferees estimated that a saving of $32,000,000 a year could be effected without crippling the administration.

But recklessness must be avoided in the pruning process.

Steel Men's Visit

The Coming of European Operators to Study Pittsburgh's Mills Is Encouraging.

The coming of a group of European industrial executives to Pittsburgh today to study Pittsburgh steel mills is gratifying as fresh evidence that we are in position to teach the world something about metallurgical manufactures.

There are steel men from England, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia in the group. Their spokesman is quoted as saying that while the steel industry abroad is still "in the red" they look for early improvement, and wish to be in position when the change comes to make the most of it.

The implication is that Pittsburgh can teach them something of value in this connection.

It is an encouraging statement, and the visitors are welcome.

He Won't Be Happy Till He Gets It

The WET elephant has been burdened with the wrong mahout for a number of years. It is about time for a change.

When a DRY guides a WET strange things happen; sometimes these strange things prove TRAGIC; AND THEY HAVE.

Under Prohibition, temperance—TRUE temperance, MODERATION, has been set back a score of years. The saloon passed on, AS WAS RIGHT, and in its place came half a score of speakeasies, unregulated, unlicensed, untaxed. Light wines and wholesome beer faced the hampering restrictions of a fanatical minority while hard liquors, mostly poison bootleg, were given free reign. Intemperance increased, especially among the young. Crime, nurtured by Prohibition, flourished; Law breaking became Big Business; Justice wept at the steadily growing contempt for all laws and all duly constituted authority and at the official corruption in high places and low.

The nation has become enlightened as to the FOLLY of Prohibition. Public sentiment favors REPEAL. The Elephant, if he takes it into his head, CAN break through the fence, that Cartoonist Enright pictures above.

And unless all signs fail HE WILL BREAK THROUGH.

Watch the maneuvers of the mahout at the Chicago G. O. P. Circus to keep the Elephant away from the fence. And note the result.

Detours on the Love-Route

Possession is nine points of the love-game — but self-possession counts 10.

* * *

A wise woman profits by her own mistakes, but a wiser woman profits by the mistakes of other women—and saves the price of the fare to Reno.

* * *

When a man falls in love he should throw away his fountain pen. A summer infatuation and a fountain pen can do more to wreck a man's life than any other combination.

Women never think of any man under 40 as a "bachelor"—because, so long as the mold hasn't "set" and he is still impressionable, no man is anything except a possible husband.

* * *

Girls got kissed just as often when a kiss was an achievement or an adventure instead of a matter of course. But somehow the old-fashioned girl knew the art of getting "kissed against her will," thereby giving the kiss more kick and flavor.

* * *

A man's love for a woman is always blind, until some other woman comes along and sweetly opens his eyes—and hands him a microscope.

* * *

"Two souls with but a single thought" are not always a pair of romanticists dreaming of a love nest. Sometimes they are a pair of cynics, whose "single thought" is that marriage would be something of a bore.

When a woman reaches the stage where she forgets to powder her nose or use her lipstick, it is a sign that she has "nothing left to live for."

* * *

Now that divorce is almost as prevalent as radios and as much of a household convenience as an electric refrigerator, you can find at least one in nearly every family.

Marriage has a way of stepping in and spoiling some of the most beautiful love affairs, which might have lasted for years.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 2.—Manhattan's cultural currents have not completely dried up, despite Harlem hot-cha-cha speakeasy flourishings, cocktail drag-outs and sundry manifestations of a world on the bust. The visitor is naturally impressed with the pretentious phonies of the Broadway fury.

Sandwich parlors fill every dawn with debauchees of the furious night. On every side in mid-town are the loose living imprints of flewsies and the buckaroo. It is only after living here many years one cracks the veneer and beholds the New York of decent standards and singular sincerity.

Noonday lectures on current topics bring out capacity audiences. Morning musicales fill ball rooms of de luxe hotels. John McCormack can bring an over-flow crowd to Carnegie with a mere announcement of a recital over the portals. Sunday symphonies muster silk hats. So do gallery teas.

Ruth Draper and Cornelius Otis Skinner, in polite mimicry, do a bigger business than many high-priced leg shows. William Beebe and other explorers turn crowds away. Every ceramic exhibit attracts intellectuals to whom Broadway is as remote as Kamchatka. Art film houses pay good dividends.

In sedate, modestly priced tea rooms one may often seen such humanitarians as Helen Gould entertaining at dinner. The one restaurant in New York where smoking cigarets by women is forbidden is always crowded. All of which is inspired by sight of a capacity audience at an afternoon lecture on Thoreau today.

* * *

The hip flask, incidentally, has gone out like a light. Five years ago a dozen manufacturers were reaping a harvest. Today there are few takers. Drink toters carry booze in bottles, done in packages and handed to headwaiters to be served. This prevents bulging of clothing and leaving flasks on tables.

* * *

The other evening at vaudeville, a long performance and the failure of an electrical announcer to click caused the audience to arise en masse for the exits just as a quartet of hoop rollers came on to close the show. Only a handful, probably 20, remained. Yet not once did the act's routine sag. It was a pitiable snub, the unforgettable heart wrench for valiant troupers. And when they rushed to the footlights for a final bow every cheek glistened with tears. And those of us who remained went out into the night with the suspicion of a choke.

Nor should I neglect to mention the loyalty of the orchestra—at the Palace, by the way—which stood as the curtain fell and gave the performers a rousing cheer.

The shyest violet of the editorial shops, it would appear, is the hardy essayist, E. B. White, who writes "The Talk of the Town" for the New Yorker. He never permits his name to appear in the magazine, although on rare occasions he signs initials to some special article. Before chaining himself to a desk he was a wandering poet, floating here and there on trading ships and tramp steamers. In the sanctum he is known merely as "Andy" and is 32 years old.

Today at $1,500 a week he executes exactly the same didoes, including his blasty "hot-cha" and eye-rolling. "I got a million of 'em." In the slang of the Coney exploiters: "It's all in the build up."

No, the gangsters haven't marked him for a ride. The police aren't camping on his trail. Yet he's just as surely doomed to be "rubbed out" as though he faced machine guns.

HE, HIMSELF!

He, himself, has put himself on the spot.

He has put himself on the toughest spot a man can occupy, and each day he bumps himself off—

BY HIS OWN INDECISION!

Indecision. That doesn't seem a very serious plight, does it? You laugh at the chap who can't make up his own mind. Perhaps you despise him a little. You may even become irritated if his wobbling interferes with your own program. But you certainly don't think of him with horror as you'd think of a man about to be shot, stabbed, poisoned or strangled.

AND YET A MAN'S OWN INDECISION CAN MESS UP HIS LIFE AS BADLY AS ANY ASSASSIN'S BULLET.

It's much pleasanter and safer to die, however, painfully, than it is to live without the ability to make up your own mind.

Minds are supposed to be a blessing, a rare privilege which man alone enjoys, and by which he is elevated above the brutes. And IF you can control and direct your mind, then a mind IS a blessing.

BUT IF YOU CAN'T CONTROL YOUR MIND IT BECOMES A CURSE, NOT A BLESSING.

The man who can't make up his mind is like a poor rabbit, torn by ravenous beasts.

Desire yanks him one way.

Fear grabs him the other.

Between them, the poor, weak man struggles, writhes, twists, quivers, shrieks, sobs, faints—in an agony of indecision.

And this does not happen just once, in some particular emergency. The man who has not learned to make up his mind is always in an emergency; for life presents one dilemma after another, and at each quandary the agony begins afresh.

From the moment he rises and has to decide what to eat for breakfast, on through the day with its thousands of trifling problems which must be handled, that man must use his mind. And if he can't drive his mind, if he has no power of decision, then he is at the mercy of every person and every circumstance. He literally can't "call his soul his own."

Millions of discouraged, bewildered human beings wander through life, failing in all they attempt, casting bitter blame on God or society or their families for their predicament, when, actually, all that ails them is that—THEY HAVE NEVER LEARNED TO MAKE UP THEIR OWN MINDS.

For this business of making up one's mind is not a natural habit. It must be learned.

The young born child does not know how to use his mind any more than he knows how to use his hands or his feet. He must learn to control his feet, to aim his gestures. It is hard to learn. He learns by "trial and error," by adding things wrongly and suffering the consequences. Presently he learns to do things right and escape unhappy consequences.

And the child must learn how to make up his mind in the same way. He must learn to fix his mind in the right spot, just as he learns to place his hand on the right spot. He discovers that he cannot step in two places at once. He must also discover that he cannot think in two places at once.

He must decide which thought to think, which act to choose. And unless he does learn to decide, he will be as miserable, as ridiculous, as tragic as the idiotic child which never learns to walk or feed itself.

DON'T MAKE DECISIONS FOR YOUR CHILD! Force it to make its own decisions and abide by them, even if it causes some suffering. And don't try to relieve it of that suffering, or you will be doing it a ghastly injury.

IF YOU ARE AN ADULT, DON'T ALLOW OTHERS TO MAKE DECISIONS FOR YOU. Make your own decisions, even if some of them are wrong.

A wrong decision may gum up your program, but it will harden up your spine, and that's the important thing. Without that, you'll have about as much standing in the human game as a fish worm.

This Ominous Calm: A Warning

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Rep. 'g," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important wor s, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

For three years the nation has been in the throes of a serious and dangerous economic crisis, and there are probably two or three million men on whom families depend who have had no work, or very little, within this time.

Each year—almost each month—during these three years more have been added to the army of the dispossessed.

And every time another man is deprived of a job the purchasing power of the nation is reduced just that much.

And every time the purchasing power is reduced the business of the retail merchant suffers just a little more; and that injures the wholesaler just a little more; and that hurts the manufacturer just a little more and leads to the discharge of more men from the factories because there is a decreasing demand for the manufacturers' products.

Thus, at the end of three years we are in a worse condition, as far as unemployment is concerned, than we have been at any time since the bursting of the market bubble.

* * *

Men Have Submitted Quietly to Evictions

The amazing thing is that, despite the suffering, frequently threatening starvation, where there actually is not starvation, the millions of breadwinners out of jobs have been quiet and orderly. One would have thought a few years ago that, under existing conditions, there would be a series of riots, and that radicalism would go on a rampage. There has been nothing of the sort.

Men have quietly submitted to evictions from their rented houses, and there have been few strikes and none of any magnitude. This is true today when unemployment is greater than ever before.

To some this is all very encouraging. Some agree that it is highly complimentary to the self-control of the American worker. Some assume that he is not on a rampage because charity has taken care of him and his family to the extent of preventing starvation. Others, more thoughtful, we think, conclude that he is quiet through fear—that the magnitude of the disaster has really stunned him.

And there are others, more thoughtful still, who think this unusual calm is ominous. They remind us that it may be like the deadly quiet just before a great storm.

* * *

A Waning Faith

We are afraid that men in power in Washington are not even curious to know what is going on in the minds of these 30 millions who are in abject want because of the unemployment of the bread-winners. We must confess that we are. And we think we have a good idea. We receive hundreds of letters from among these unfortunates, many from women, mothers of children, who paint an appalling picture of misery and dumb despair. Some are threatening—not many.

But most indicate a waning faith in the perfection of our political institutions and social system. We quote from one of them:

* * *

"I have never cared to be rich. I never expected to be. And I have never been annoyed because others are rich. Some of these deserve to be. And if others do not, it never struck me it was anything for me to worry about.

"But I have always wanted to be comfortable, and was willing to put in hard work in a factory to make me comfortable. But for two years I have not had a job. I have lost the home on which I was paying because I could not keep up the payments. My small savings in the bank are now gone. My wife is sick from worry. My children merely get enough to eat to keep body and soul together. And I am getting bitter. I have lost all faith in our kind of government, and all faith in our social system. I am ready for a change."

This thought is becoming deeply embedded in the consciousness of millions and millions of people—because they cannot possibly be satisfied with a situation that takes no thought of their condition.

* * *

All they want Is Work

This man is not starving, because his friends chip in to prevent it. But his morale is gone. His faith is gone. And all this is perfectly natural.

John Pierpont Morgan would feel the same way under similar circumstances. Even Mr. Hoover. And yet all these men want is work—the right to work, which means the right to live in self-respect.

Meanwhile the President persists in his devotion to a dole in preventing actual starvation. Many months ago a hundred leading economists protested against the "present dole of public and private charity."

"I don't want your money, child—damn your charity—I want work," says the character in Mrs. Gaskell's novel of the days of the industrial revolution. From "Buy an apple" to the block aid movement, there has been nothing impressive or even approaching a real solution of the grave human problem of unemployment and starvation.

The greate nation, with the greatest resources in the world, cannot muddle along forever with pee-wee things, when from eight to ten million breadwinners are thrown into the human scrap heap, and the number is on the increase. The President evidently does not have the slightest conception of the conditions in the homes of millions of the people, who are just as self-respecting as he is, who want to work and earn their bread and are denied.

* * *

There Is Only One Way Out

It is sheer nonsense for him to say that we want to get back to normal employment; it is incredible that he should not know that as long as thirty million people, directly and indirectly affected by unemployment, are deprived of purchasing power there never will be a return to normal employment. There is only one way out—a prosperity loan for public works on a scale commensurate with the magnitude of the crisis.

We have no patience with the President's point that, no matter how desperate and dangerous the state of unemployment, no federal money must be used on anything that does not pay dividends to some one or yield a revenue in money to the government.

Public improvements do not usually bring in revenue. New York State has spent hundreds of millions on public parks that pay no man a dividend and yield scarcely any revenue; but they are the greatest investments New York has ever made for humanity. More than that: it is investments such as these for the benefit of men, women and children that bind people to their institutions with a realization that their government has some interest in them as human beings.

No one proposes that bonds be sold that money may be found to dump into the sea. The money is to be spent on roads—and Rome found they paid dividends indirectly and enormously, on rivers and harbors, on improvements of permanent value.

* * *

A Prosperity Loan Is the Biggest Barricade

Congress has now recognized the principle behind the prosperity loan and there is going to be one. One of the measures pending will be passed. And it is unthinkable that Mr. Hoover would dare veto it. That would be too much like Nero fiddling a lovely tune while Rome burned. It would be too suggestive of the type of ruler Rome had just before the cyclone.

And we are not going to have this calm—this ominous calm—much longer. Human torture will find a tongue. We dare not enter another winter—a fourth winter of human misery—with nothing done to put men to work.

The prosperity loan is the best barricade that can be built against an invasion of extreme radicalism. We are living in a revolutionary atmosphere—and on a live volcano.

Business men of intelligence will back Congress in an adequate prosperity loan; and all who want to preserve the faith of the people in our political and social system must.

If the President is against it—Congress must push ahead and do its duty and let the responsibility rest where it will.
